Hays Pulls Out As Ohio Candidate

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio — Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who admitted having an affair with Washington staff aide Elizabeth Ray, today withdrew as a candidate for re-election to Congress.

Despite having won renomination in the June 8 primary after the scandal broke, Hays, 65, said in a letter to the Columbiana County Board of Elections in his 18th congressional district of eastern Ohio he will not run for a 15th term.

Miss Ray, who was on Hays' payroll despite her own claims she couldn't type or answer telephones, was featured in this month's Playboy Magazine picture spread on Washington women, along with Fanne Foxe, the stripper whose involvement with Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., two years ago began his fall from power. Mills has also declined to seek re-election.

Legislators Will Pow Wow with Towns on Welfare

Takeover Is Tabled

By CHAZY DOWALIBY
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — The Ulster County legislature put a 30-day hold on a proposal to take welfare costs away from individual towns and turn the responsibility for welfare payments over to the county social services department.

By unanimous vote last night the legislators tabled the resolution offered by William R. West, Woodstock, until a further meeting with town supervisors and welfare officers could be set up.

New Paltz legislator Thomas W. Roach moved to table the controversial ammendment, commenting that the group had made a committment to review the impact of such a proposal on municipalities with local government representatives. Until such a conference is held, he said, he doesn't think a vote should be taken.

A point of some debate during the hour and a half session was the passage of a resolution which puts the county on record opposing the Army Corps of Engineers Esopus Flood Control Plan as it is now written.

The plan calls fro 1,500 feet of levees and flood walls to be built along the Kingston side of the Esopus Creek, bordering the Dutch Village apartments and the Kingston Shopping Plaza

Legislator Richard D. Nace of Ulster has opposed the plan because it doesn't offer any protection for homes on the Ulster side of the creek.

The Nace resolution urges the Corps to "adopt a uniform benefit to all concerned parties regardless of property class or geographic location."

Four of the five Kingston legislators present voted against the resolution on the grounds that, as James F. Gilpatric put it, "half a loaf is better than none." He said Kingston needed the business and taxes generated by the property to be protected.

City legislator Melvin Mones, however, called the proposal a "vote against short-sighted bureaucracy" adding that although he didn't feel the county's position would have any impact on the Corps of Engineers decision to go ahead with the project, he feels perhaps Ulster should go on record in favor of a "100 per cent project instead of just a 75 per cent one...one that would benefit people on both sides of the creek."

The resolution passed 23 to 9.

The county will also participate in the state's Intergovernmental Personnel Act program, which will give Ulster county a trained personnel administrator to work with the Civil Service Commission.

UCCC Gets $5.2M

KINGSTON — After a 10-minute public hearing Thursday afternoon the county legislature approved the $5.2 million budget of Ulster County Community College without question, 26 to 6.

During the afternoon hearing not one legislator had a question or comment on the $1,492,550 county share of the school's spending for 1976-77. The only questions came from faculty member Keith Labudde, who also heads the contract bargaining unit for teachers at the school.

Most of Labudde's queries concerned last year's spending.

During the legislature's monthly meeting Thursday night an amendment was added which will keep all salaries for non-contract employes at 1975-76 levels until after the county-faculty bargaining talks are completed.

Legislator William R. West, who sponsored the amendment and who sits on the Community College committee, said he was hoping to keep some $75,000 in proposed raises under wraps so that the faculty bargainers could not point to these increases in their talks.

Most of that raise money is going to administrative personnel at UCCC.

"I feel we should not enter negotiations encumbered by having raising already in the budget." West said.

The college has budgeted the same amount for teaching salaries as last year.

UCCC President Robert Brown has declined to comment on where the additional money could come from if the staff demands pay raises.

Since Ulster county's contribution to the schools' budget for next year remained at the same level, it's proabaly fair to estimate that the college will have to come to the county for that extra cash.

Contractor Stops Work, Wants More Money

Saugerties Sewer Sinks

SAUGERTIES—Work has completely stopped on the laying of sewer mains for the Barclay Heights Sewer Improvement District and it may be a while before it begins again.

"Contract 1A has come to a screeching halt on Route 9W," reported Saugerties councilman Jerome Daley. Moved to Simmons Drive in lieu of the 9W work, Halmar Construction Co. once again encountered sinking problems and wants more money before it continues.

As explained by town attorney Michael Catalinotto at Thursday night's council session, the state was unhappy with leakage on Route 9W. But when Halmar began work at Simmons Drive, the main sank nine inches over the weekend, supposedly because of some quicksand 25 feet below the surface.

The condition, known as soapy clay silt, was not discovered in the original test borings. The contractor now is asking more money for what he claims are necessarily new specifications for the project.

The upshot of the matter is that both the town and the contractor are seeking expert soil engineering advice. The dispute may end up in court before Halmar does any more work.

But Daley reported that contract 1B has been awarded for the laying of sewer lateral lines in the Barclay Heights development to Durham, Conn. firms, Delta and TCB Construction companies. That work, to cost $1,534,679, should begin in two weeks or so .

Supervisor Frank Greco thanked townspeople for their cooperation in complaining about suspected illegal welfare recipients, noting that two of the seven cases complained of have been taken off the rolls and five more cases are in progress of review.

On the question of the county taking over welfare administration, Greco said it would be fine with him as long as the town was furnished with a list of recipients every week and that he would be allowed to attend the fair hearings.

"I've been to two fair hearings, and both times I've won," he claimed.

The supervisor also: blasted the Department of Environmental Conservation and the Army Corps of Engineers for a lack of help with efforts to clean up the Esopus Creek from Marbletown to the Cantine Mill Dam in Saugerties, a project

Daley Pleads Innocent, Set Free

NEW YORK (UPI) — The chief officer of Ulster County's Teamsters local is free on a personal recognizance bond after pleading innocent to charges he extorted construction materials and trucking services from contractors and drivers.

Theodore G. Daley, who has been secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 445 in Newburgh for 20 years, was arraigned Thursday before U.S. District Court Judge Gerard L. Goettel.

A seven-count indictment filed Aug. 3 charged him with the "use of fear of financial and economic injury," beginning in 1971, as the chief officer of the local to get crushed gravel and heavy wood beams from three different firms which hire Teamsters for construction and renovation at his Windham vacation home.

The companies were identified as the Hudson Cement Co. of Kingston, which supplied the gravel; Callanan Industries Inc., of South Bethlehem, and the Maggiola Construction Co. of Pearl River, both of which supplied the wood beams.

The indictment said Daley also intimidated unionized driver-owners of trucks to deliver the goods to the house in Windham. Daley's permanent home is in Beacon.

Local 445 operates in Westchester, Orange and other upstate counties as well as Ulster.

Named as unindicted coconspirators with Daley were Anthony Aleca Jr., the former local president, and Thomas Clausi, a former union shop steward, for allegedly helping Daley get the goods and services.

If convicted, Daley could get up to 25 years in jail and $60,000 in fines.

Secret Vote Count Held In County Union Election

ALBANY — Votes are being counted today in the hotly contested election between the Civil Service Employees Association and the Service Employees International Union for representation of Ulster County's 1,000 civil service employes.

At press time, representatives of the two unions and the staff of the state Public Employment Relations Board were still counting the mail-in ballots behind closed doors.

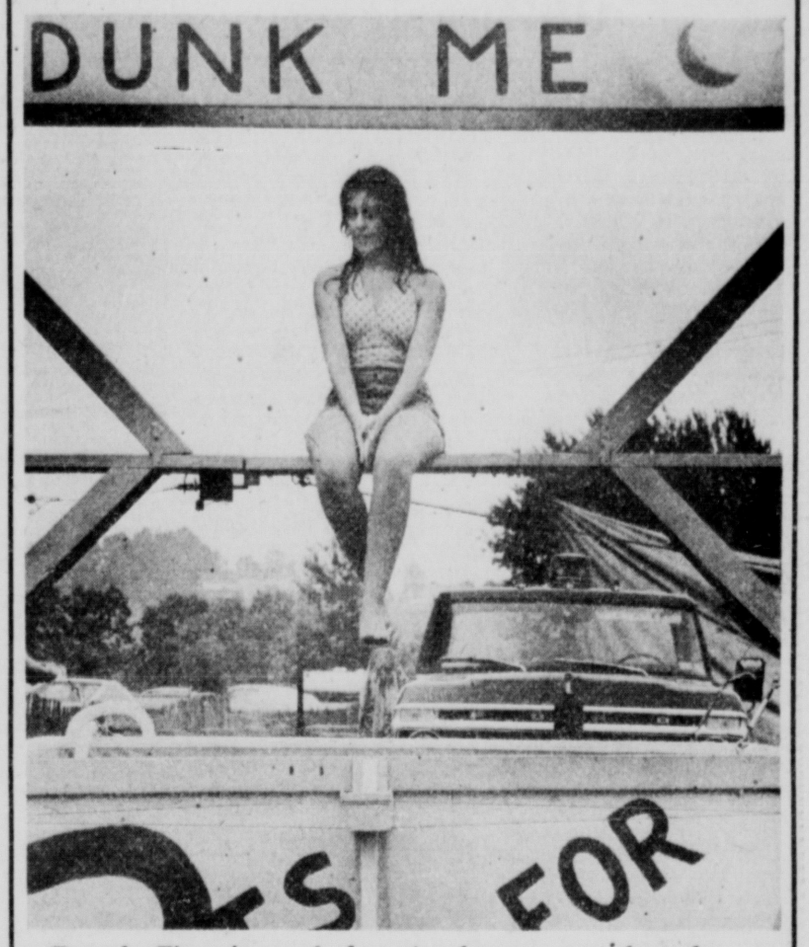

It was not known at that time if any challenges on the votes had been called by either side.

The two unions have conducted a campaign of charges and counter charges over the past few months and ballots for the final employe vote were mailed out late in July.

CSEA currently represents the workers.

SEIU has recently lost two similar attempts to gain a foothold with New York State workers. It lost elections for control of New York State Thruway workers and employes of Sullivan county.

Ulster Fair's First Day Attracts 3,000

NEW PALTZ — More than 3,000 paid admissions were logged by 3 p.m. Thursday for the first day of the Ulster County Fair, lending credibility to director John Molloy's prediction that attendance would top last year's estimated 12,000.

This is the first year in which admission has been charged, making it possible to set exact figures. All previous figures were estimates.

The Miss Ulster County Teenager Contest highlighted first-night activities, with Pamela Dean of Kingston topping a field of 19 contestants. She will represent Ulster County in the statewide contest later this month in Norwich. Laurie Molloy of West Hurley was named first runner-up and Michele DeDomenico of New Paltz second runner-up.

Today's program features daytime judging of sheep, beef, swine and goats and a 4-H horse show. The Kingston Archers will put on demonstrations of bow-and-arrow skill at noon, 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. Dr. Edison's Medicine Show will perform at 1 p.m., 4 p.m. and 8 p.m., and a rock group, The Legends, will appear at 3 p.m., 5 p.m., 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Evening activities will be highlighted by the Osborne Brothers, a noted Nashville singing and instrumental group which will appear at 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. on the main stage. Both performances will be supplemented by Saugerties' own New Country Cousins and Jim Collier's bluegrass group from Catskill, making up more than two hours of country and western music at each performance.

John Keeley, 78, Is Bona Fide Saugerties Olde Timer

By TIM SCHUSTER
Freeman staff

SAUGERTIES—We dropped in on a bona fide Saugerties old timer to taste a flavor of the celebration set for Saturday, the fourth annual Olde Timers' Day in this village sponsored by the Saugerties Business Association.

John Keeley is 78 years old, a Saugerties policeman for 31 years until arthritis laid him up in 1961. There were four cops in the entire village and town when he was on the force. He lives in the house at the corner of Main Street and Washington avenues where he grew up, when Washington Avenue was "just wood lots."

Some things about the village have not changed too much, according to Keeley. The business district then centered about upper Partition Street where three department stores held sway, Ershler's, Butzel's, and Lazarus.

Although "people were more friendly the then," he thinks, mostly because the population moved around less, "I don't think there is any more crime than before."

Most of the problems the police had to deal with in his heyday on the force were "drunks and gangs from different areas of town." The gang from Cementon, for instance, might breeze into town and start trouble. Notorious brawlers from the several districts of Malden or Glasco or somewhere else nonethless were more susceptible to discipline from the police than they are nowadays, he thought.

He remembered the times when Saugerties enjoyed the status of a tourist landing for boats from New York City, when the people flowed upstate on the day liners for weekend stays in boarding houses and when the bluestone from Fish Creek and Quarryville was drawn on wagons with horse teams to the Hudson River. Some went to Malden, but most was loaded on a route that carried it past St. Mary's church down to the lighthouse where Dr. James Maxwell owned the stone docks.

The wagons traveled on heavy metal wheels over bluestone tracks down by the docks, bringing the sidewalks of New York to the waiting barges. He counted off the names of team drivers and of boats that docked in the river.

Other river boats stopped also at Barrytown and at Ulster Landing to pick up farmers' produce for a voyage to Christopher Street in the city.

Keeley remembered when Cahill School, across Main Street from his residence, was completed in 1908 and his brother was in the first graduating class. There were only two boys and ten girls.

"It was always like that," he remembered, "as the boys didn't se seem to follow it through from grade school." He took out a 1914 yearbook from the

Threat Letter To Ford

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — A tall blonde with a penchant for Nazi swastikas pleaded innocent Thursday to a charge that she threatened the life of President Ford in a letter written from a women's prison.

Mary Margaret Shellhorn, clad in jeans with the red Nazi emblem embroidered on a hip pocket of her jeans, faces trial on the charge Oct. 1.

The 24-year-old inmate at the federal reformatory for women in Alderson, W.Va., allegedly threatened Ford's life in a letter.

Much of the alleged threat was reproduced in the indictment, which said the six-foot woman with long, blonde hair penned:

"Hey, you know, you S.S. guys are really amusing," apparently referring to the Secret Service.

"I knew no one was going to press charges against me. I can tell you that I'm going to kill President Ford and anyone else and no one's going to do a damn thing about it."

A Nazi swastika also appeared on the letter.

Arrest Two For Slaying

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Police arrested two young Buffalo men late Thursday in connection with the slaying of James R. Weatherly, 19, of Hamburg, who was stabbed and then dumped onto a passing freght train to bleed to death last week.

Police said John Muzzy, 20, was charged with first-degree manslaughter and Richard Zawistowski, 24, was charged with hindering prosecution.

Weatherly's partially nude body was found on an open auto carrier train car in Pansville Township, Ohio, last Thursday. Authorities said his throat had been cut three times and he was apparently dropped onto the train as it passed under a Buffalo area overpass.

Police believed Weatherly was stabbed on a South Buffalo overpass where a group of rowdy young persons — including a youth who may have been Weatherly — was questioned by Conrail police last Thursday.

Stains found on stones and railroad ties near the overpass were being tested to determine if they were made by Weatherly's blood.

Authorities said a trail of blood on 30 cars ahead of the open car where Weatherly was found led them to believe the youth was held from the overpass until an open car passed under the overpass.

Officials theorized the youth was dropped into the open car so his body wouldn't roll off in an area where he could be more easily identified.

Police said they were still seeking a motive but said drugs might have played a factor in the slaying.

Weatherly lived at S-7181 Parkside Drive. Muzzy lives at 485 West Ave. Zawistowski lives at 86 O'Connell St.

Faces Florida Charges

LAKE GEORGE, N.Y. (UPI) — Kenneth Yarter, 25, accused in the 1974 rape and murder of a teen-aged girl has been transported to Florida to face probation violation charges.

New York authorities said Yarter, who has been convicted on charges of menacing and reckless endangerment unrelated to the tenn-ager's death, was flown to Florida Thursday.

Sheriff's deputies from Broward County, Fla., picked Yarter up Wednesday night from the Warren County jail and quartered him in the Albany County jail overnight before flying to Florida.

Under an interstate agreement, Florida officials have six months in which to adjudicate the probation violation charges against Yarter before returning him to complete his one-year sentence in New York. Time spent in Florida will be credited to his jail term, officials said.

New York officials said any sentence imposed on Yarter by Florida officials would have to be served following the completion of his sentence here.

Yarter was sentenced to the one-year term June 6 in Glens Falls City Court.

Yarter was arrested July 16, 1974, in the slaying of Susan Zanta, 16, whose nude body was found in a field near Cossayuna Lake in Washingon County, where she had been vacationing. Yarter had worked as a waiter at the lake.

His trial in the murder case has been held up by lengthy litigation over a disputed confession.

Rape, Drug Selling Among Crimes Found

Grand Jury Returns Indictments

KINGSTON — Indictments against alleged rapists, cocaine sellers, arsonists, robbers, unemployment cheaters, and others were returned by the county grand jury Thursday.

Eltora Lee, 19, and Willie Blount, 18, both of Ellenville, could get up to 25 years in jail if they are convicted of raping a 12-year-old girl in Ellenville on June 12. They are each charged with forcible and statutory rape.

A $40,000 cocaine sale was allegedly broken up by state police investigators, resulting in the arrest of Lawrence Benes, 25, of Miami, Fla., on June 19. The indictment returned against Benes charges that he sold an ounce of cocaine to an undercover state policeman.

Benes allegedly drove up from Florida with the drug. It was supposedly a sample of the pound he was allegedly to sell to the state policeman. A pound of cocaine is worth about $40,000, according to First Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh.

Benes faces a trial on the Class A-1 felony and, if convicted, a minimum sentence of 15 years to life in prison.

The grand jury returned an indictment of third-degree arson against James De Groat, 16, who allegedly set fire to the Cafe Downtown on West Strand Street owned by Robert Johnson. If convicted, De Groat could spend the next 15 years of his life in state prison.

Ernest Singer, 20, of New Paltz was indicted for allegedly selling a gram of LSD, worth $4,500, to an undercover state policeman in Singer's home on May 20. A search of the house allegedly turned up more drugs, resulting in three other counts of drug possession

Kevin Martin was indicted for allegedly robbing the 7/11 Store in New Paltz on Feb. 14 with a knife and taking $45. The charge of first degree robbery carries a three-year minimum sentence.

For allegedly receiving unemployment checks while working full time, Charles Moosick, 27, Kingston was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree.

A former inmate at the Eastern New York Correctional Facility at Napanoch who allegedly failed to come back from a furlough on April 16, 1975 and was captured last May and now faces an indictment of first-degree absconding from temporary release.

Willie Horne of New York had only six months left to serve when he allegedly failed to return from his furlough.

William Brush, 50, of Kerhonkson was indicted for alleged drunken driving which caused the death of Benjamin Miles on April 28, 1976. Brush, after allegedly drinking heavily, was driving in the wrong lane when he rammed into Miles's car head on. Brush faces a charge of criminally negligent homicide.

The grand jury also returned another charge of selling cocaine , but the defendant's name is being withheld until his arrest.

Charges against Louis Robichaud of grand larceny, second degree, Jack Buck of third-degree grand larceny, and George Bowers of third-degree assault were dismissed by the grand jury.

Misdemeanor charges against Theodore Belfor and Phillip Huxford were sent to lower courts for disposition.

POLICE BEAT

Apparent Station Robbery Foiled

ULSTER--Ulster County deputy sheriffs foiled an apparent robbery at the Power Test gasoline station on Route 9W in Ulster early this morning.

Deputies Michael Lyons and Stephen Weishaupt, on routine road patrol, noticed a parked car and what they thought were persons in the locked station itself at 4:38 a.m.

Stopping to investigate, they arrested two Port Ewen youths, Michael Taylor, 19, of Clay Road and Georgia Dennis, 18, of 158 Hoyt St.

The two teenagers were arraigned before Esopus Town Justice Robert Jordan on charges of burglary in the third degree and possession of burglary tools at about 7:30 a.m. and remanded to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bail each.

The car the deputies allegedly spotted at the scene was a Datsun, possibly a 1973 model, owned by Mrs. Mary Taylor, Michael Taylor's mother, according to the sheriff's department.

Two Held Up

Two Ellenville-area teenagers were held up at gunpoint Thursday night along Route 209 in Wawarsing, Ellenville State Police reported.

The two youths, one 14 and the other 15, were bicycling south on the road when a dark green Chevrolet, either a 1964 or 1965 model, stopped in front of them at 9:55 p.m.

Two young men one brandishing a pipe and a revolver, demanded the bicycle riders give them money for gas.

When the teenagers replied they had none, one of the men struck the the 14-year-old on the leg with the pipe. He was not seriously injured.

One of the alleged criminals is described as 5 feet 10 inches tall, thin, black hair, in his twenties and wearing a white T-shirt and blue jeans.

The other, who carried the gun and pipe, is described as 5 foot 9, heavy-set, also in his twenties with black hair, and wearing a dark work shirt.

Anyone with information on the two are urged to contact Ellenville State Police.

Patrolman Lucky

A Kingston patrolman escaped serious injury Thursday when the motorcycle he was driving was in collision with a car on Wilbur Avenue.

Jon P. Angstrom, 35, 163 Hurley Ave., was driving south on Wilbur Avenue in his 1966 Pontiac and attempted to pass a city truck parked on the street.

When he swung left to do so, his vehicle collided with the cyclist,Robert P. Boughton,29, 140 Clinton Ave., who was heading north on his 1975 Kawasaki.

Boughton was treated at the emergency room of Kingston Hospital for abrasions to his leg and knee and released. His motorcycle received a broken muffler and bent fork.

Aided Recovery

The Ulster County Sheriff's Department helped locate 11 lost children in Hamilton County Thursday night after the group's sponsor,the Rev. Grady Jones of Rochester, called the department early this morning.

He said the group, which included two adult leaders and children ranging in age from nine weeks to 12 years, had not returned from a trip in the Mt. Pleasant area.

After searching the area, the department and its Juvenile Aid Bureau guessed that the pastor might really have meant Lake Pleasant in Hamilton County.

A call was made to the Hamilton County Sheriff's Department, which located the missing group, hungry and tired but in good condition, in the Lake Pleasant area.

CBs Are Stolen

Two citizen band radios were stolen from two pickup trucks late Thursday while their owners were inside the Centerville Fire Station.

Vincent Brennan, Route 212, Saugerties, and Arthur Faulk of Blue Mountain Road, Saugerties, told Saugerties Town Police that the radios were stolen while their pickups were parked in the fire station's lot.

Saugerties has been plagued by CB radio thefts in the Glasco area, town police said. They are investigating the burglary.

GOP Monkeywrench

Sen. James Buckley's interest in "freeing up" the Republican National Convention by presenting himself as a last-minute third candidate and carrying off the decisive votes on the first ballot is a cynical effort to interfere in the outcome of a long, fairly-fought primary battle between two hardworking candidates.

Our senator presumably has no serious hope of being nominated. He merely wants the nomination to go to a second ballot so delegates committed by the laws of their home states to vote for Ford or Reagan on the first ballot can then break away and vote for whomever they like.

Whether this would help Reagan or Ford is an open question. He could draw away enough uncommitted delegates to deny Ford a quick nomination, or split the conservative Reagan block and cost Reagan the nomination. But the chance that the convention would become deadlocked and frustrated enough to turn to Buckley seems remote indeed — if only because such a step would almost certainly assure Carter's victory in November

In any case, the first ballot is supposed to be a genuine test of the major candidates' strength after the popular voting in the primaries. Ronald Reagan, for better or worse, has played the primary game against great odds and in the spirit intended by the electorate which approved the primary election system in each state. So, by and large, has President Ford.

Is it fair to them or to the Republican rank-and-file for a third candidate who ran in no primary to throw a monkeywrench into the works now?

STAFF'S CHANCE

In Praise of Nixon

An interesting dispatch was carried the wires the other day which, to my way of thinking, is deserving of some mention here in our pages of the Freeman.

It concerned an attempt by Harold Stassen, the perennial loser in the Republican Party's presidential sweepstakes, urging the GOP platform committee to include a plank praising some of Richard M. Nixon's work as president and supporting his pardon for the Watergate offenses.

Stassen, in submitting a list of platform proposals in Kansas City, said "I've felt the Republican Party has made a mistake to ignore his (Nixon) years."

To my way of thinking, Stassen's proposals have some merit.

Certainly the former president has suffered the disgrace of being forced to leave the White House. But we can't completely overlook his accomplishments while serving as president of the United States.

Many will no doubt disagree with this observation, and they have that right. That's what makes America the great country it is. The country is great enough, and at the same time big enough, to stop kicking a man when he is down.

By following Stassen's recommendations, it would be the Republican Party, and not the nation as a whole, offering some balm to the ex-president. Even a half a loaf — recognition of Nixon's accomplishments even if the party couldn't swallow supporting President Gerald Ford's much-criticized Presidential pardon of his predecessor — wouldn't hurt the party.

Stassen hasn't had much success in the political ring but from this corner we think the former Pennsylvania governor has come up with a victory of kindness —something that all of us at one time or another could show our brother man.

Help Save The Starving

Dear Editor:

As a former Ulster County resident, I hope that many of you who read this will give very serious consideration to giving help to people who will soon be dead if they are not helped.

I do volunteer work for "CROP", the community hunger appeal of Church World Service. CROP serves people on the basis of need, not creed. A tax deductible, charitable contribution to CROP enables it to get tools, seeds and food to people who will otherwise die. These give them the means to grow things, thereby becoming able to feed themselves and their families.

I have often heard it said that one person can't feed the whole world. I have never, however, heard anyone ask an individual to do so.

I hope many will ask themselves if they will no be willing to help those whom they can keep from starving. Although in this life we may not know the names of those we can help — and did (or could have helped, but didn't), they are individual persons, each with a name, nevertheless.

You can, for instance, send a donation to CROP to honor a person on his or her birthday a couple on their anniverssary, etc.

I personally feel we should send at least $5 because CROP will send a nice card to the person we have so honored.

CROP's mailing address is: P.O. Box 968, Elkhart, Indiana 46514.

It Was All Albany's Fault

Dear Editor:

It is my understanding that news media have the responsibility to present the facts to the public and if they are wrong in their presentation, they should admit it and print a correction of equal impact.

On July 8th your paper carried a front page blast on "County Lost Out on Federal Jobs." That story inferred that many jobs were lost due to lack of control by a county agency. On July 9th I called the Freeman and spoke with your reporter, Steven Asher. I told him the story was inaccurate and directed his attention to the proper county agency — Intergovernmental Coordination. I am informed that he did call the office and that the inaccuracies were pointed out to him and that he was given the names and telephone numbers of authoritative people in the state for his personal corroboration of our side of the story. To date, the reporter has failed to correct the story in any way.

To compound matters, on July 9th you carried an editorial entitled "The ICO Muffed It" which blamed the County Intergovernmental Coordination Office for a loss of scores of badly needed summer jobs.

How can the ICO be responsible for the loss of jobs if the program was not made known to them by the administering agency (DEC) by any means, until after the application deadline was past (May 1976)? Your reporter was told this and that he could confirm it with Mr. Kramer of the DEC.

Since the Freeman reporter failed to confirm this fact, we have. In a letter to the ICO from Mr. Krmaer, dated July 23rd, he says, " ...it is indeed unfortunate that your office is being held responsible for a situation over which you had no control." This statement is made by the man who is responsible for administering the program statewide! Mr. Kramer continues, "To the best of my knowledge, the program was not advertised in either Newsvane or by a statewide press release in December." That is contradictory to the statements made in your paper which were attributed to a subordinate of Mr. Kramer.

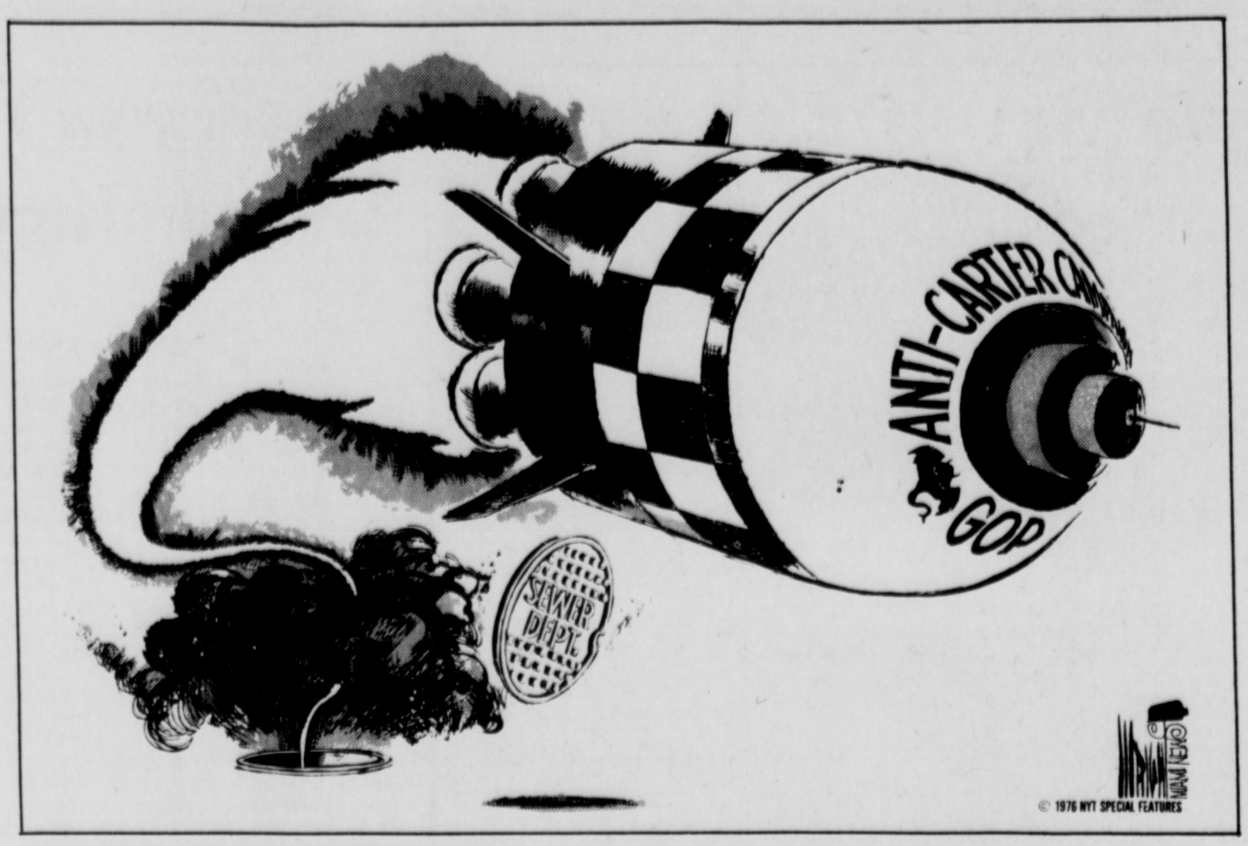

The Freeman muffed it! You owe both the Intergovernmental Coordination Office and your readers a sincere apology as well as a prominent retraction.

PETER J. SAVAGO
Chairman
Ulster County Legislature

(The DEC did a poor job of publicizing its program, as it eventually admitted.But, as we see it, that doesn't relieve the county office of responsiblity. If every state and federal agency is supposed to send out press releases announcing every pending program months in advance, why do we need a county Intergovernmental Coordination Office at all? Obviously there other ways to find out about such programs than reading magazines — 37 other agencies in 31 other counties got grants for summer jobs. —Editor

Jimmy Carter Goes Fishing

WASHINGTON - The Rev. Carter came out of softball and seclusion the other day to promise, if elected, that "we're going to reverse the trend that we've experienced in the past that has destroyed the American Family."

This is the kind of remark that candidates of both the ordained and unordained variety make from time to time, so that wisdom counsels that they not be held against the speaker. Unfortunately the Reverend has got himself and the public in a kind of cul-de-sac that prohibits him from saying anything without making it appear he's trying to deliver on it. Ergo in the next breath he announced that one Joseph A. Califano, Jr. has been appointed "a special adviser to me on how federal programs can aid and support the American Family." Presumably, if the Reverend is elevated to that secular episcopacy we call the presidency, Mr. Califano will assume some title like Director of the Federal Family Administration or, maybe more simply, Federal Father.

Mr. Califano, who is doubtless a splendid husband and paternal parent, functioned in an earlier incarnation as an important assistant to President Lyndon Johnson. He is now, among other things, a lawyer for the Washington Post, and while he has acquitted himself adequately, even admirably in these positions, there is nothing in his record that indicates he will be able to restore the American Family. Nor is there in anybody else's, and that's the point.

It's one thing for the Reverend Mr. Peanut to recognize that the White House is, in Teddy Roosevelt's phrase, a bully pulpit; it is another to pretend to people that you seriously mean it when you say things like, "I believe we can restore human values, respect for one another, intimacy, love, respect for law, patriotism, good education, strong churches... I pledge to you that every statement I make, every decision I make, will give your families a decent chance to be strong again."

It is no good reinforcing the idea that the federal government can be made responsible for everything. Indeed, with Carter's emphasis on improving administration, he should be telling us what Washington can and ought to do well, and what it must give over to other organs in the society.

He is not the first national politician to federalize a problem. By federalizing a problem, you first define a local one in national terms and then you assert a national solution. This was done by Carter's predecessors with crime, and it is being done with education and medicine to no very good purpose.

We can suppose utterances like this arise from what the political writers call Carter's "thematic" campaign approach, the taking up of vague but important symbols, playing with them, using them, turning them into mechanisms which bind voters to his candidacy. Defined this way, it's not easy to distinguish thematic campaigning from demagoguery, except that Carter goes about it in a low-key way that is less frightening and less likely to uncage the bad animals within our spirits. Even so, such speechifying may agitatae anxieties and contribute to the sense of unhappiness which many of us have in spite of 70 per cent of the population being so prosperous that doctors warn us it is hazardous to our health.

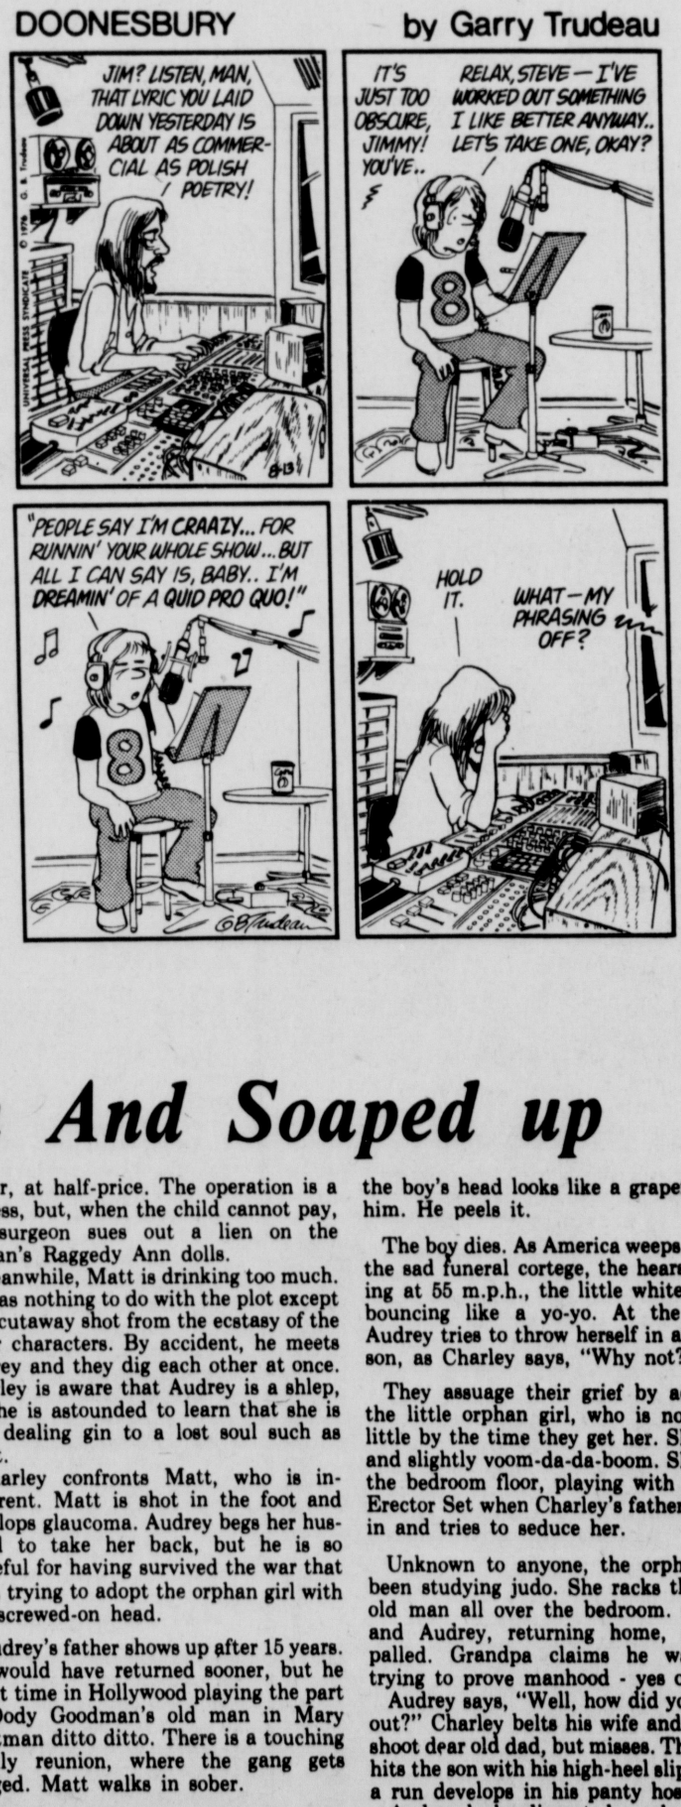

The Right Honorable Goober from the state of Georgia does have obstacles to surmount, which should incline us to forgive his flings at saving the American Family. He really has no galvanizing campaign issues. The public opinion polls reporting him miles ahead of his two potential opponents are wholly untrustworthy. Such questions as the restoration of integrity in government simply don't elect presidents. They are too vague, too abstruse and too removed from the immediate and moving concerns in people's lives. Neither after the scandals of the Grant nor the Harding administrations did the Republican party have to pay the price of leaving office. That the public will be less forgiving now is yet to be shown.

The they're-all-a-bunch-of-crooks mentality, which we partake of occasionally, works against Carter. It leads him to show that Ford and his chaps are so conspicuously bad that they ought to be booted out, and that's not easy to do. So Carter is left to go fishing for thematic material unless he wishes to go dabbling among issues that are real enough but which may cost him more support than they win him.

Against candidate Ford, Carter's troubles multiply. He's not only up against the special credit and deference accorded to any president, regardless of how the man got the job, but with Ford in particular he has to deal with a double standard of judgment. If Ford comes out and says he's going to save the American Family and he's appointing William Simon the Domestic Relations Czar, it will be dismissed as Jerry running on at the mouth again. Jerry has wormed his way into our hearts. He's become a mascot, a pet, the orphaned ward of the federal government whose care, feeding and love has been delegated by an amused and affectionate people to Betty, Jack and Susan. As such we don't hold it against him when silly, unintelligent or rash things escape his thick, panting red tongue. Scratch his ears, and throw him a convention delegate from Mississippi.

There are a lot of people out of work, but there're a lot more working; there are a lot of people who want to buy a house and can't afford one, but there're a lot who have one to live in already. That's why Reverend Goober Peas has got to find a theme that works or learn why our grandparents went out and elected Calvin Coolidge.

Tuned in And Soaped up

How's this for a soap opera plot?

Charley comes home from the war to an empty house. His wife left no forwarding address at the post office. The P.O. has spent four years trying to locate Charley to deliver a Dear John letter from his wife.

She left him for a flirtatious brain surgeon who is going blind from glaucoma. Charley searches high and low - mostly low for his Audrey. Accidently, he confronts the brain surgeon and shoots him.

The bullet grazes the doctor's temple, magically restoring his sight. The surgeon finds a new career in a brave new world shooting people who are going blind. Audrey weeps her way back into Charley's arms, only to hear him confess that he suspects he is a latent homosexual.

Audrey tells him not to worry. She knows that he is all man. It's his father who is a closet queen. Charley falls to the floor in a foaming fit as he refers to his old man as a mother. They sneak into their little boy's room and find, to their dismay, that the kid is displaying his Christmas gift, an Erector Set, to two decoy vice-squad cops.

Charley's mother can't make up her mind whether to go through with the divorce. She thinks the publicity might hurt her husband's career as a congressman. For 20 years - as well as she knows - he has been towel boy in the Toots Shor restaurants.

In gratitude for the restoration of his sight, the brain surgeon decides to operate on a little orphan girl with a brain tumor, at half-price. The operation is a success, but, when the child cannot pay, the surgeon sues out a lien on the orphan's Raggedy Ann dolls.

Meanwhile, Matt is drinking too much. He has nothing to do with the plot except as a cutaway shot from the ecstasy of the other characters. By accident, he meets Audrey and they dig each other at once. Charley is aware that Audrey is a shlep, but he is astounded to learn that she is now dealing gin to a lost soul such as Matt.

Charley confronts Matt, who is incoherent. Matt is shot in the foot and develops glaucoma. Audrey begs her husband to take her back, but he is so grateful for having survived the war that he is trying to adopt the orphan girl with the screwed-on head.

Audrey's father shows up after 15 years. He would have returned sooner, but he spent time in Hollywood playing the part of Dody Goodman's old man in Mary Hartman ditto ditto. There is a touching family reunion, where the gang gets bagged. Matt walks in sober.

Everybody is afraid to tell Charley that he was adopted. Actually he is the son of an old chorus boy from "George White's Scandals." One day his kid tells him and Charley bends the Erector Set over his son's head.

The youngster develops a clot and is taken to the brain surgeon. No more half-price, the surgeon roars. Charley mortgages the house and the operation is on. The brain surgeons's sight is so bad that the boy's head looks like a grapefruit to him. He peels it.

The boy dies. As America weeps, we see the sad funeral cortege, the hearse rocking at 55 m.p.h., the little white casket bouncing like a yo-yo. At the grave, Audrey tries to throw herself in after her son, as Charley says, "Why not?"

They assuage their grief by adopting the little orphan girl, who is no longer little by the time they get her. She is 18 and slightly voom-da-da-boom. She is on the bedroom floor, playing with a rusty Erector Set when Charley's father sneaks in and tries to seduce her.

Unknown to anyone, the orphan had been studying judo. She racks the dirty old man all over the bedroom. Charley and Audrey, returning home, are appalled. Grandpa claims he was only trying to prove manhood - yes or no.

Audrey says, "Well, how did you make out?" Charley belts his wife and tries to shoot dear old dad, but misses. The father hits the son with his high-heel slipper and a run develops in his panty hose.

Audrey looks disgusted as she shouts, "Men!" and leaves the house. She sends him another Dear John letter and delivers it herself. Meanwhile, Charley orders the orphan to go to bed, slams the door, and peeks through the keyhole.

As the scene closes, we know that Charley is going to find happiness with that girl or find out the reason why.

To find out the reason why, wait until I take my next nap...

Communists Pamper Athletes

WASHINGTON — Confidential intelligence reports explain how the athletes from the communist bloc made such a spectacular showing at the recent Olympics.

The documents claim that communist countries have been force-training athletes for the Olympics since at least 1960. The star performers not only are subsidized but are pampered with luxuries in flagrant violation of Olympic rules, the documents allege.

This supports the frequent charge that communist governments develop professional athletes to compete against amateurs. One intelligence report quotes a past defector from the Cuban gymnastics team, Zulema Bregado Gutierrez, as stating: "All the athletes are professionals since athletics is their main employment."

She explained that Cuban athletes draw no salary but "receive other privileges which are tantamount to salary." She citied "free room and board and clothing." They get "much better food," and clothing "of the best materials available in Cuba," she said. These special advantages, she told U.S. intelligence men, "are not available to the rest of the population."

Another Cuban defector, Hector Rodriguez Cordoso, told about being sent to Russia to study physical education. Summarizes an intelligence report:

"For a classless society, Rodriguez said, Soviet athletes not only enjoy special class privileges, but they are actually segregated into categories according to their performance in competition.

"Most Soviet athletes who have won medals in competition of world significance, such as the Olympic Games, rank as first class athletes and receive a monthly stipend of 400 rubles in addition to other privileges such as automobiles, housing and the opportunity to travel abroad ...

"For every new world record a Soviet athlete sets," continues the intelligence report, "he receives a bonus of 1,000 rubles and other benefits." The document adds that lesser athletes also "receive considerable recognition, monetary and otherwise, above and beyond what an ordinary worker would receive in the Soviet Union."

According to the document, "Rodriguez was emphatic in stating that the Soviet athletes with whom he came in contact made no secret of the fact that their efforts to excel were spurred primarily by the promise of material gain."

For communist athletes, the political indoctrination is as intensive as the physical training. The Cuban gymnast, Zulema Bregado, reported that "at least 30 minutes of political indoctrination is mandatory before every daily training session." Thereafter, she was required to train for four hours "every day of the week except Sunday, year round."

The athletes are carefully coached on how to react at the Olympics. States an intelligence document: "The Cubans make a special effort to orient their athletes so that once they come in contact with foreigners, they have a preconceived party line which they are to use.

"Every effort made by the members of the team, individually and collectively is oriented to put the communist regime of Cuba under the most favorable light. For this reason, the Cuban athletes are considered one of the best means of conveying that message."

Some of these confidential documents date back to the 1960s. Yet they accurately forecast the behavior of the Cuban athletes who performed at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

The indefatigable Cuban runner, Albert Juantorena, dutifully dedicated his racing triumphs to Fidel Castro and the revolution. The formidable Teofilo Stevenson, the gold-medal heavyweight boxer, also always said exactly what Castro would want to hear.

Indeed all of Castro's athletes arrived in Montreal with a full repertoire of Cuban revolutionary slogans. Not one of them expressed a thought of his own.

There could be no denying, however, that the Cuban athletes put on a tremendous performance. Hector Rodrigez told in an intelligence interview how they were groomed for their triumph. Relates the report:

"Rodriguez revealed that every Cuban province had a Training Center for Athletic Initiation in the schools. The main purpose of these centers is to recruit promising youths as young as 11 years of age... (and) train them politically and technically unitl they reach the age and necessary capability to enter another specialized school.

"The latter is at the university level and is known as Superior School of Athletic Preparation ... The school is located in the former Cubanacan Counry Club, one of the most luxurious of Havana, and the students receive privileged treatment with regard to food, clothing and housing."

The athletic triumphs are used, according to the intelligence documents, to divert public attention from "other failures" and to demonstrate the "the superiortiy of Marxist-Leninist ideology in sports."

The Castro regime also inflates its triumphs by counting separately all the medals awarded to team membeers instead of the single award to the team.

The Cubans also divided "the number of medals gained by the number of the population of each participating country," states an intelligence report. "The main purpose of this statistical manipulation is to show that percentage-wise, the Cubans can field better athletes than any other country."

No Alarm Seen in Price Hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The biggest jump in industrial prices since January occurred last month, the Labor Department reported Thursday, but government economists saw no cause for alarm.

Commerce Department economist John Kendrick said the 0.7 increase for industrial commodities "does not reflect the basic underlying rate."

Wholesale prices rose 0.3 per cent in July, compared to 0.4 per cent in June and 0.3 per cent in May. The July advance translated into an annual inflation rate of 3.6 per cent, and White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said President Ford was pleased that the annual average rate still was below 4 per cent.

Wholesale food prices dropped 1 per cent in July — -the first such decline in four months.

Industrial prices, which rose 0.5 per cent in June, have gone up steadily since the first of the year, with monthly increases fluctuating between 0.2 per cent and 0.7 per cent.

"I think wholesale prices on the average will continue to rise at a fairly moderate rate in the coming months," Kendrick said, but he did not foresee food prices dropping as much as they did in July.

$400,000 Theft Charges

Ex-Mott Boss Pleads Innocent

NEW YORK (UPI) — Donald M. Klock has pleaded innocent to charges that he stole $400,000 from the Duffy-Mott Co. while president of the firm and failed to report it on his income taxes.

Klock, 69, of Bay Shore, was charged Aug. 5 in a 14-count federal indictment with income tax evasion, mail fraud, conspiracy, obstruction of justice and making false statements.

He was released in his own recognizance at his arraignment Thursday before U.S. District Judge Gerard L. Goettel. No date was set for a trial. If convicted, he could receive 66 years in jail and $71,000 in fines.

Klock allegedly made up phony invoices for goods and services never rendered to the company, which is known for its apple and other fruit products, and took the money himself.

Klock also was charged with taking more than $90,000 in the same manner from Todd Estates Inc., an apple orchard he owns in the wayne County community of Williamson, which did most of its business with Mott's.

The indictment charged he used the money to buy Cadillacs and redecorate his Long Island home and vacation homes he owns in Florida. The indictment said he bought a swimming pool for one of the Florida homes.

Klock, who retired in 1971 as president of Mott's, said the money was used for such legitimate business expenses as building offices at these houses so he could do business for the company there and that Mott's knew about the expenditures.

Klock's deceased brother, Robert, also was charged in the indictment with stealing $53,000 in the same manner.

Esopus' ZBA Allows Sawmill

ESOPUS — Augustus Wohltmann will be allowed to continue operating his private sawmill as a result of a decision made by the Esopus Board of Appeals.

A neighbor, Milton Usherwood, had contended that the sawmill, housed in a 20- by 50-foot tin enclosure, violated the town's new zoning ordinances.

But at the town's monthly board meeting this week, Jonathan Wagman, chairman of the Zoning Board of Appeals, said the sawmill on Old Post Road conforms to the town's zoning regulations.

The ZBA decision was accepted by the town board, with the condition that the mill not be operated as a commercial enterprise.

Underwood had alleged that Wohltmann wanted to establish a commercial milling operation at his home, but Wohltmann and his family said that they merely wanted to produce lumber for themselves and for their friends.

The mill hadn't been used more than dozen times in the first six months of the year, estimated George Kidd, one of Wohltmann's sons-in-law who testified at the zoning board hearing on July 1.

At the fourth Thursday meeting the present practice of hearing questions, statements and petitions from the floor at the beginning of the meeting will be continued.

The program provides six months of free training for the candidate selected with the stipulation that the county then provide a full time staff position for the trainee.

Minority Leader Luois Klein added an amendment to the resolution requiring the trainee to be an Ulster County resident. Both the amendment and the resolution passed by wide margins.

The legislature also approved $85,000 to complete renovations on the highway department complex off Quarry Street and appropriated $1,299 toward the purchase of a senior citizens bus. Most of the $12,987 bus cost will be picked up by the state.

A recommendation was passed urging the Ulster County Industrial Development Agency to meet with IBM officials to see if there is anything the county can do to keep any or all of the company's planned transfers of personnel from taking place.

The legislature approved the transfer of $200,000 from the Social Services Personal Services account to cover home relief expenditures and agreed to spend $6,000 to cover its share of the cost of erecting a temporary Shawangunk Lake bridge between Orange and Ulster counties in Shawangunk.

Saugerties Academy that had a graduatimg class of ten girls and one boy. When Keeley graduated on year later, the trend had started to change. In his class were 11 boys and ten girls.

In those days, "everybody worked in factories." There was Cantine's Mill, the Diamond Mill, the Saugerties Manufacturing Company, the tissue company near the railroad, and "lots of brickyards at Malden and Glasco," he said.

Keeley felt he had struck it rich one year working for the Montgomery Wire Spring Company making felt jackets to transport ice cream, bringing home $15 a day on piece work. But the bonanza was short-lived. Refrigeration was introduced the next year and the felt bag job went out the window.

Sports was Keeley's abiding interest for many years, from his pitching days in high school ("I used to strike out between 16 and 18 batters a game") through basketball, football, and tennis. He saw Christy Mathewson of the New York Giants pitch three innings with that professional club at what is now Cantine's Field in Saugerties when the Giants played the Saugerties team of the Hudson River League, composed of teams from Saugerties, Newburgh, Hudson, and Kingston.

Keeley went back home and showed his large family, when he was five years old, how Mathewson threw the ball, and he was hooked on sports. He played top caliber local tennis at a weight of 320 pounds, and still is a stocky 215 after a bout with pneumonia this winter that saw him shed 30 pounds.

With no Thruway to divert traffic upstate, the city's weekend rush for many years backed up for blocks through Saugerties. Keeley was known far and wide as "that big cop on the corner."

His daughter, Joan Feldman, coproprietor of Eddie's Delicatessen on Partition Street, brought the concept of Olde Timers' Day to Saugerties, says Keeley.

He will celebrate Saturday by sitting on his front porch and waving to old friends as they go by.

that Town of Ulster officials have shown interest in.

"They allowed $2 million to the City of Kingston to build a breakwater at Britt's Plaza," he stated, noting that neither agency could find any money for the other towns.

And of a recent special hearing on the disparity of telephone rates in upcounty towns from the Kingston area, Greco said of the phone company officials, "They graciously wrote everything down and we haven't heard from them."

The town board also: reported that an effort is being made to realign the en entrance and exit road to the town landfill on Route 212 because its steeply graded access route poses a hazard in winter weather.

• Promised some action in repairing potholes on Willow Road, Barclay Heights, where some residents expressed fears in a letter that some of their children might drown.

• Said it would ask the Village of Saugerties about the possibility of buying more water in order to extend the Glasco Water District to another 30 homes in Cafaldo Park off Route 32, all expenses to be borne by those families if the project is feasible.

• Asked for a report on three proposed trailer parks now "in limbo," according to Supervisor Greco, so decisions on their construction can be made.

• Pointed out that the zoning ordinance is being reviewed by county planners and town board members prior to another public hearing on the revised law's adoption.

Is This the Best in the World?

GOP Beats Path to Rib Palace

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — The elite Eastern Establishment has discovered Arthur Bryant's and Arthur Bryant isn't sure he likes it. The Republican convention hasn't even started and Arthur Bryant's ran out of spare ribs twice Thursday.

Arthur Bryant's is a restaurant — like Tiffany's is a jeweler and Man O' War was a horse.

Calvin Trillin says Arthur Bryant's is "only the single best restaurant in the world."

Calvin Trillin is a native of Kansas City, but he said that in "The New Yorker," and what is more Eastern elite than that?

So with Trillin writing about Arthur Bryant's, Easterners who came to Kansas City a week ahead of the convention flocked there this week.

When UPI was sent to investigate Arthur Bryant's Thursday, CBS was there, taking television pictures of people eating ribs and barbecue. NBC alreadg had come and gone.

Bryant stood in his office — decorated with five straw hats, one cloth hat, a cap, a rolltop desk, and a bottle of mayonnaise — and told ABC: "If you are taking a taxicab, all you have to do is tell the driver, 'I want to go to Arthur Bryant's' and he will get you here."

Bryant said he has fed Harry Truman his barbecue. He said he freely tells people the ingredients of his sauce, but they cannot duplicate it. He said he supervised the construction, brick by brick and of his own design, of the enormous oven where briskets of steer are cooked over a hickory fire for 13 hours.

He was asked if he thought he produced the best barbecue in the world.

"I don't know," he said. "But I work at it. I work at it hard."

UPI photo

Bryant, plying his trade.

"I've played around this business since 1931, and I've owned it since '46," he said. "I've always had all the business I could handle, and I cut it down in '59 because sickness slowed me down. For 20 years, I worked 18 hours a day. After we closed at 1 a.m., I'd cook. I'd cook all night. Now we close early, at 11.

"I don't cook any more, but I'm on call and I supervise the cook. I supervise closely."

Bryant's dining room is plain. Five dusty jugs of barbecue sauce — fermenting in the sun — are the only decoration in the window. Bryant has seven clocks and three calendars on the walls.

Let Trillin describe the serving line: "The counterman tosses a couple of pieces of bread onto the counter, grabs a half-pound of beef from the pile next to him, slaps it onto the bread, brushes on some sauce in almost the same motion, and then wraps it all up in two thicknesses of butcher paper in a futile attempt to keep the customer's hand dry as hecarries off his prize."

A customer in the line was asked if he thought Bryant's was the world's best barbecue.

"Possibly."

"How long have you been eating here?"

"Twenty years."

Cautious, these Missourians.

Polaroid Chief Foils Kidnapers

WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI) — Polaroid Corp. President William McCune has a dislocated finger and a lump on his head today — the price of his battle with one of the FBI's most wanted fugitives and a buddy who made the list a few hours later.

McCune managed to avoid getting kidnaped.

Two men, whom police said were wanted in connection with terrorist bombings in three New England states this year, cornered McCune, 61, in a Polaroid parking lot Thursday morning, pointed a shotgun at him and tried to abduct him.

McCune, who keeps in shape by skiing and riding a bicycle, twice refused their orders to get into a van, then grabbed the barrel of the shotgun when he was knocktd to the ground.

The men fled.

"The little finger of my left hand was dislocated and a few stitches were required to close a wound behind my left ear," said McCune after he was treated at Waltham Hospital. "I'm otherwise fine."

The assailants were identified by a Polaroid guard as Richard Picariello, 27, of Portland, Maine, and Edward Gullion, 27, of Boston.

Picariello has been on the FBI's most wanted list since July 29. Gullion was placed on the list hours after the attempted kidnaping.

The two have been sought since early July in connection with bombings in Augusta, Maine, Seabrook, N.H., Newburyport, Mass., and Boston.

Investigators said earlier this summer Polaroid had been a potential target of Picariello, Gullion and two men already in custody.

McCune, a native of Glen Falls, N.Y., became president and chief operating officer of Polaroid last year.

Panama Red's Palace Makes Its Debut Today

By SID LEAVITT
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — Like a 1938 nickelodeon with a gleaming chrome smile, Panama Red's Palace slips its gears into musical motion today.

The two men behind Panama Red's, perhaps the first nightclub of its kind to open in Kingston since the old dance hall days, are William F. Permenter of Woodstock and Anthony J. Perry of Kingston, a pair of neophyte jazz-rock promoters who believe they have a gold mine on their hands.

"I think we're gonna kill 'em," said Permenter, a former fashion display designer who dreamed up much of the nostalgia motif of Panama Red's, a one-time auto salesroom and recruiting office turned duotone pleasure arcade at Albany Avenue, Maiden Lane and Broadway.

"There is no place in Kingston for the 25-and-up crowd to go listen to music and dance," said Perry, who will be manager. "The best the cocktail lounges can do is a man with an electric organ who tweaks in his background, and that's kinda poor."

Striking up the music in a loft beyond the overhead fish net and mirror ball will be River Road, an electronic band of homegrown talent led by keyboard player and vocalist Jeff Schechter and featuring an assortment of steel guitars, bass and percussion.

Although the musicians play from the second floor of the split-level palace, Permenter said Panama Red's shouldn't be stereotyped as a discotheque: "That's pretty much out now. After the Hustle is done, the disco thing is gonna be all over."

The musical fare will be basically contemporary jazz-rock in a nostalgia setting, but the customers can decide on the variations, Perry said: "If you want the waltz and you can get enough people to demand it, we'll get it."

The Panama Red logotype is a red ball with gilded letters, a design reminiscent of Lucky Strike or perhaps a stronger cigarette from Central America. Permenter said no drug connotation was intended, but rather the revival of the old-style dance hall idea.

The building has been repainted in chocolate brown with beige trim, and even the Golden Cue Billiard Room next door has foregone its traditional sign in favor of a two-tone triangle split with the art-deco lines that now pinstripe the facade.

"This is the best location in Kingston. There isn't a car that doesn't pass here at least once a day," said Permenter, who envisions the palace as a cornerstone in a neighborhood devoted to amusement and recreation.

His wife Iris is listed as owner, and the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has been told her investment in renovations has been $8,000, but private estimates go higher.

Beneath the fish net and mirror glass is a semicircular bar spreading into the main section of the 1,200-square-foot floor. Closer to the cafe-curtained windows are small cocktail tables and wooden booths lighted by Tiffany-style lamps. Capacity is 125 persons.

Most of the floor is checkered parquet, but there is carpeting around the periphery, and Woodstock Creative Carpentry has preserved an old fireplace in one corner, painted in two-tone pastel blue.

The logotype and design detail work were done by Signs and Designs of Rosendale.

"The public is excited about Panama Red's. We have people driving by every day, hanging out of cars and hollering, 'Hey man, when are you gonna finish this place?' " Permenter said.

"I even had one lady stop in front — man, she must have been in her 60's — and she threw up her hands and said, 'Far out.' "

Ballet School Will Be Built at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ—An official ground breaking ceremony was held recently on the site for the new New Paltz School of Ballet at Rte. 32 and Bonticou View Drive. The projected date for the grand opening according to Vincent Pomarico, designer and builder, is this Fall.

The New Paltz School of Ballet, founded and directed by Fred Douglass de Mayo, will continue to function as a full time professional training center for area ballet students seeking serious studies in dance. The school has become known on a national level. It was established in 1959 and for 16 years has remained one of the most successful cultural forces in the community. It has never had a permanent home in all that time, relying on available and suitable space. It once existed in the old Saint Joseph's Centre now known as the Academy Theatre.

The new address was most desirable for many reasons, noted de Mayo. It is within a short walk to the Duzine School where many ballet students attend. Secondly, it is next door to the Village Arms Apartments where many students of the school live. Perhaps the most significant appeal for the proposed site is the accessability afforded by the highway Rte. 32.

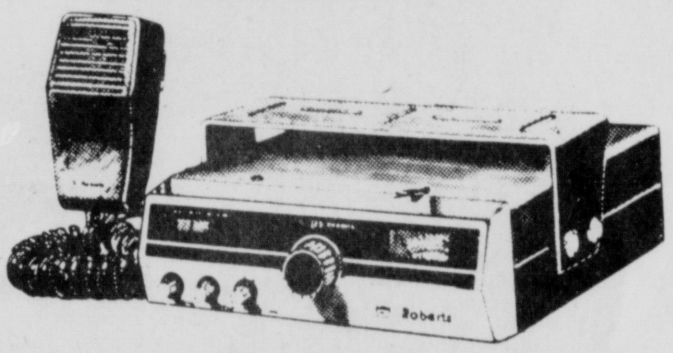

GROUND BREAKING SHOVEL is being used by Fred Douglass de Mayo, founder and director, and Vincent Pamarico, designer and contrrctor, for the new New Paltz School of Ballet. Among those attending the occasion held recently at the site for the school were Kathleen Scott (center) of Scott Realtors; and friends, Mr. and Mrs. St. Julian Fishburne.(Freeman photo by Haines)

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

On July 17, 1778, Gen. William Howe's adjutant reported he was successful in obtaining a meeting with General Washington. The British aide told Howe it was a fruitless session because "Washington is not interested in any pardons for patriots who have done no fault except to gain their freedom from the Crown," The World Almanac recalls.

DEAR ABBY

Contact Lenses Are Problem for Teenager

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 and have a terrible problem. I nagged my mother to get me contact lenses (I wore glasses), and three months ago she finally got me some.

Now I can't wear the contacts because they are just too hard to get used to. They irritate my eyes and I can't keep them in. (They are the hard kind, not the soft. It is just terrible, Abby. Kids shouldn't be allowed to get hard contacts because they hurt too much.)

I don't know how to tell my mother. She will get mad at me because she spent a lot of money on them and she didn't want to get them in the first place, but I begged so hard she gave in.

Please help me, but don't write back because my mother might get the mail first. Thank you.—RED EYES

DEAR RED EYES: Tell your mother. She'll take you back to the place you bought your contacts for a consultation. Others have become accustomed to the hard lenses, and you probably can, too, if you follow instructions. But first see your eye doctor to find out whether your problem is with your eyes or the contact lenses.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with a guy for three years off and on. I've tried to break up with him, but every time I make the attempt, he cries, begs and carries on. He's even threatened to commit suicide so I get soft-hearted and change my mind. If he were to kill himself because of me, I'd never be able to forgive myself.

I have begged him to go with other girls, but he won't. I've even gone out with other guys hoping he'd date other girls just to get even, but it hasn't worked. He says if he can't have me, he doesn't want anyone.

Now he's pressuring me to marry him. I don't really want to, but I feel so sorry for him, I'm tempted to say yes. He's not a bad guy. In many ways he's really nice, and I'm sure some girl would feel lucky to have him.

I have told him that I am not in love with him. But he says he doesn't care because he loves me, and after we're married I'll learn to love him. He's 26 and I'm 22. What now?—TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: Do yourself (and him) a favor and tell him it's not fair to either of you to continue the relationship. Then break it off, once and for all. If you allow him to play on your sympathy, he may eventually wear you down to the point of marraige. Then YOU will be the one who will need the sympathy.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since my mother died 10 years ago I have been wearing her wedding band on my key chain. It would fit my little finger, but I am wondering if it would be proper for me to wear it.

I'm afraid it might provoke a lot of questions. Then what would I say? I don't want to appear a sentimental fool.—MAMMA'S BOY

DEAR BOY: Go ahead and wear it. And what's wrong with being sentimental? If anyone inquires, tell them the truth. I think it's a beautiful idea.

Incumbent and Challenger Parallels Noted in Political Annals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The atmosphere at the Republican National Convention hall was heavy with the bitterness of a hard-fought, name-calling struggle for the presidential nomination between the bumbling incumbent and his popular challenger.

Pandemonium ruled from the first gavel. Squads of police hired by the national committee roamed the aisles and the rostrum enforcing the rulings of the chair.

The candidates had detectives working to prevent bribery of delegates. Barbed wire camouflaged by bunting lined the railings around the rostrum. The challenger's supporters, protesting the incumbent's tactics, sat in the galleries rubbing sandpaper together and blowing horns to simulate the sound of a steamroller at work.

The year was 1912; The place was the Chicago Coliseum; the candidates were President William Howard Taft and his former friend, ex-President Theodore Roosevelt.

Roosevelt had picked Taft as his successor in 1908 when he decided not to seek another term. But four years later, he was calling the President "a fathead who has an intellect a little short of a guinea pig." Roosevelt decided to try to knock Taft out at the GOP convention.

Until 1976, that was the only instance in 20th-century presidential politics in which an incumbent seeking his party's nomination faced a serious challenge at the national convention.

"The more common pattern that we've had in recent years, of course, is that the incumbent drops out," said David Leuthold, professor of political science at the University of Missouri. "In 1968 the incumbent (Johnson) was challenged, and he decided not to run. The same way in 1952, Truman was challenged and he decided not to contest the race.

"Ford has changed the situation in that he has tried to stave off the challenge. Otherwise you have to go back to 1912. In 1908 Roosevelt picked Taft, then Roosevelt went off to hunt big game in Africa. He returned to find that Taft was following more conservative policies than he desired. So he decided to challenge Taft in the primaries and did quite well."

Roosevelt won nine of 12 primaries that year, but Taft controlled the national committee and a decisive number of delegates from the South who were influenced by the incumbent's patronage power to provide jobs.

The convention swung to Taft on the second day when the Credentials Committee, packed with Taft supporters, awarded a bloc of disputed delegate seats to the President. Roosevelt's name didn't even go before the convention, but he got 107 votes anyway, while 348 delegates abstained on the first ballot that nominated Taft.

Roosevelt took his supporters into the Progressive "Bull Moose" Party, splitting the normal Republican vote and giving the Democrats their first presidential victory since 1892 behind Woodrow Wilson.

"It's a bit reversed in that the incumbent in 1912 was more conservative and the challenger more liberal," Leuthold said. "Certainly it is similar in that the challenger was a far better campaigner than the incumbent, and both the challenger and the incumbent were nationally known."

The parallels were not limited to the Republican Party.

Wilson was born in Virginia and raised in Georgia and South Carolina. The only political office he held before running for president was a governorship, of New Jersey.

His father was a minister and he carried an evangelical bent into his campaign, stressing his concern with revitalizing politics through a spiritual awakening and with restoring the country's traditional way of life.

As historian Sidney Warren, in his book, "The Battle for the Presidency," said: "With considerable skill, the Democratic candidate managed to reassure big business, appeal to the workingman and attract the middle class."

While no 20th-century president who sought his party's nomination has lost, there were four in the 19th century. The only parallel with President Ford is that three were vice presidents who succeeded to the presidency without ever being elected to it in their own right.

The four:

—John Tyler, who in 1841 became the first vice president to succeed to the presidency, when William Henry Harrison died in office. Tyler had been a Democrat who switched to the Whig Party in 1840 to run with Harrison. Often called "His Accidency," he became a man without a party and was rebuffed by the Democrats when he tried to return to that party in 1844. The Democrats nominated dark horse James K. Polk, who beat the more illustrious Whig candidate, Henry Clay.

— Millard Fillmore, who became president in 1849 when Zachary Taylor fell ill after a Fourth of July celebration and died a few days later. Fillmore lost the Whig nomination in 1852 to Gen. Winfield Scott. Scott lost in a landslide to Democrat Franklin Pierce.

— Four years later, Pierce lost his party's nomination, becoming the only president in history to have won office in his own right and then fail to secure renomination.

Historians say he blundered on the "Bleeding Kansas" issue, announcing his support for a fraudulently elected proslavery government in the territory over an anti-slavery government, prompting a mini-civil war between the two.

James Buchanan, who was out of the country during the controversy as minister to Great Britain, was the choice of the Democrats. He defeated John C. Fremont, the first candidate of the new Republican Party and Millard Fillmore, the former Whig president who had the nomination of the Know Nothing party.

— Chester A. Arthur, who became president when James Garfield was assassinated in 1881. He lost the Republican nomination in 1884 to James G. Blaine. Democrat Grover Cleveland won the general election.

Garfield's assassin was a disappointed Republican office-seeker, Charles J. Guiteau, who exclaimed after the fatal shot, "I am a Stalwart and Arthur is president now."

The assassination helped spur efforts to abolish the spoils system. Arthur, a product of the New York stalwart Republican machine, alienated the machine by working hard to institute the Civil Service merit system of government employment. While it won him popularity with the people, it cost him the nomination to the party veteran Blaine.

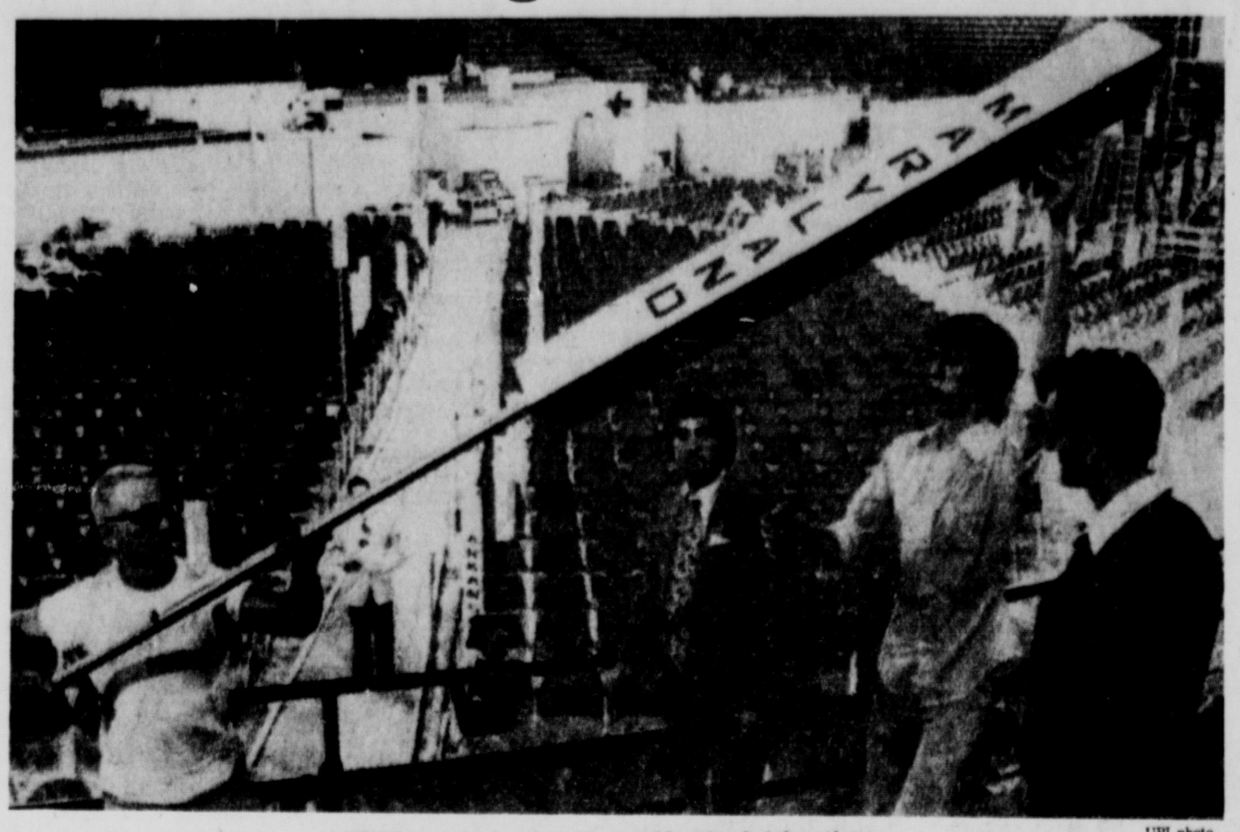

Donald R. McCoy, a history professor at the University of Kansas, said Arthur's real reason for seeking the 1884 nomination was that he had legislation pending at the time and did not want it weakened by a lame-duck status.

"Arthur was suffering from a fatal disease and he knew he couldn't possibly live out the term if elected," McCoy said. "So he ran for election, but it wasn't a full-out sort of run."

McCoy and other historians, however, discount any strong connection between the failure of the 19th-century accidental presidents to win their party's nomination and Ford's battle in 1976.

"The vice presidential situation was much weaker in the 19th century," McCoy said. "Ford's nonelection has got to count somewhere. But my own feeling in talking to Republicans is that that hardly ever comes up. They view Ford as the President."

Another unique factor in the Ford-Reagan contest, McCoy said, was Reagan's preconvention announcement of his running mate. To McCoy's knowledge, that was unprecedented among major party contenders.

"Ford has changed the situation in that he has tried to stave off the challenge. Otherwise, you have to go back to 1912."

FAMILY PLANNING SERVICES AMENDMENT TO THE NEW YORK STATE SOCIAL SERVICES PLAN

Title XX of the Federal Social Security Act

On May 28, 1976 the New York State Department of Social Services published a proposed amendment to the State's Comprehensive Annual Social Services Program Plan for 1975-76. The purpose of the proposed amendment was to make options available to the local social services districts for Family Planning Services. For the following 30 days the State received comments on the proposed amendment from the general public.

Copies of these comments and a summary are available without charge from the New York State Department of Social Services, 1450 Western Avenue, Albany, New York 12243.

The State Department received a total of 24 letters in response to the proposed amendment. The majority of these letters (16) opposed any public provision of family planning services. Of the remaining letters, two expressed approval, three raised technical questions, and three expressed approval with reservations. However, the furnishing of those services is required by both State and Federal laws.

The final amendment, therefore, reflects only one change from the proposed amendment. In response to local public comment, Putnam County reversed its original decision to provide medical family planning services to income eligibles not qualifying for Medical Assistance.

The amendment is today published in final form and will become effective today, August 13, 1976.

Beginning today, the following is adopted as the definition of "Family Planning Services" in the current Plan:

"Services to enable individuals of childbearing age (including minors who may be sexually active) to limit, in accordance with their wishes, their family size, space their children, or prevent or reduce the incidence of unwanted pregnancies by providing and arranging for the following component services:

a. Counseling and educational services which include the distribution of printed material, group discussions and individual sessions to discuss family planning information and education resources available in the community.

b. Medical contraceptive services which include diagnosis, treatment, drugs, supplies, and related counseling furnished or prescribed by or under the supervision of a physician."

Local social services districts must provide those services described under (a) of the definition to all eligible for this service: recipients of AFDC, SSI and those whose gross annual incomes fall under set levels (see below). Those eligible for Medicaid are already receiving component (b) through the Medicaid program. Districts may opt to provide (b) to all those who do not qualify for Medicaid, but whose incomes fall below the income level set for this service (i.e., 62% of the State's median income adjusted to family size).

These income levels are as follows:

Family Size	Gross Income Eligibility Standard for Medicaid	Maximum Gross Income for Family Planning Services
1	$2,700	$ 4,599
2	$3,800	$ 6,014
3	$4,200	$ 7,429
4	$5,000	$ 8,844
5	$5,800	$10,259
6	$6,500	$11,674

Districts opting to provide (b) are: Madison, Rockland, Seneca, and Sullivan Counties and New York City.

Copies of the amendment can be obtained by telephoning toll free 800-342-3710 or by writing to your local social services district office (listed below) or to:

Early in 1781, British General Cornwallis, in Virginia, was engaged in a debate by letter with his Commander-in-Chief Clinton, in New York City. Cornwallis was confident that reinforcements could overwhelm colonial resistance in the area. Rather than sending troops, Clinton, boxed at New York and fearing French-American attack, ordered 3,000 of Cornwallis' men to the city. As Cornwallis was embarking the troops at Portsmouth, Clinton relented and allowed them to remain in Virginia, ordering Cornwallis to establish himself in a strong position on the Chesapeake Bay. He suggested Yorktown as a place.

League Championship Series Begins Saturday

Braves' Hurley No-Hits Falcons

KINGSTON — The Northern Division champion Kingston Braves will take a little added momentum into this weekend's Hudson Valley Rookie League playoffs as Thyrsday night at Dietz Stadium Bruce Hurley polished off the locals' regular season with a nohitter against the New Paltz Falcons.

The fifth starter on the staff, Hurley showed just how strong the Braves' pitching has been this year as he completely stifled the Falcons in a 9-0 decision. He dueled loser Roger Plantier evenly for five innings until his teammates assured him of the victory by scoring all their runs in the sixth.

The best-of-three series with the Southern Division champs will open with 5 p.m. games in the Newburgh Rec Park Saturday and Sunday. A third game will be played at Dietz at 8 p.m. Monday.

Kingston swept to the championships of both halves in the Northern loop with an overall 23-2 record. In the Southern race, the New Windsor Rockets currently hold a one game edge in a best-of -three playoff with the Newburgh Atoms for the right to meet Kingston for the league title.New Windsor won Thursday night, 10-5. The teams meet again tonight and will play a doubleheader, if necessary, to wind up the series.

Hurley was sharp against the Falcons, facing just one batter over the minimum and notching six strikeouts without a walk. He survived one mild New Paltz threat in the third when one runner advanced as far as third base.

Plantier also went five clean innings, but the Braves roughed him up in the sixth. Rich Koegel keyed the rally with a single to center.

After a walk and an error, Nick Malgieri ended the scoreless game with a two-run single. Plantier walked in a run after that before being replaced by Bill Schiller.

Schiller couldn't turn the Braves off, and neither could the third Falcon pitcher, Rick Pesavento. Lou Perry drilled an RBI hit, Kris Kilroy blasted a bases loaded triple, and Tim Cole and Tom Gallo also banged hits to boost the Brave total to nine runs.

Hurley got through the last frame untouched to record the second Kingston no-hitter of the year. Bob Marz already had one on the books this season.

Catfish A Winner Again

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Catfish Hunter broke a personal four-game losing streak and the New York Yankees backed him up with 12 runs on 15 hits for a 12-5 rout of the Minnesota Twins Thursday night — enough to prompt Manager Billy Martin to pronounce his team back on track.

"It was good to see Catfish winning again," Martin said. "We need him effective in order to keep going."

It was the Yankees' third win in their last four games. They recently took two out of three from the Kansas City Royals in a battle between the American League division leaders.

"No, we didn't push any harder against the Royals than the Twins," Martin said. "Every game is important in our race."

Hunter, 13-12, allowed nine hits, walked two and struck out seven in his 16th complete game of the year. He allowed only a first inning run until Steve Braun unloaded a bases-loaded triple in the seventh.

The Yankees jumped on starter and loser Steve Leubber, 3-3, for a pair of runs in the second and another in the third and settled it with a three-run double by Chris Chambliss in the fourth. Carlos May and Willie Randolph each had three hits.

The loss dropped the Twins below .500 for the season with a 56-57 record.

It took Sandy Koufax nine years in the major leagues to establish himself as one of the game's all-time great pitchers.

The man acclaimed as the right-handed Sandy Koufax is now in his ninth season but Nolan Ryan has only been able to teeter on the edgt of that Koufax-like stardom without falling into the category.

The cloak continued to tighten around the Ryan mystery Thursday night when the fireballing righty dropped a 2-1 decision to the Boston Red Sox, his 15th setback against nine wins.

Ryan matched Koufax's major league record of four no-hitters when he hurled them over a three-year span from 1973-75 but he has been plagued with an inconsistency that Koufax was able to scrap in his ninth year when he went 25-5 in 1963.

Koufax was a mere 68-60 during the first eight years of his career but was spectacular over his final four seasons with 25-5, 19-5, 26-8 and 27-9 marks before elbow problems forced him to retire. The arm troubles, however, came too late to prevent him from attaining a spot in the Hall of Fame.

If Ryan doesn't clean up his act soon, one of the great arms in the baseball history will be left out of the Hall of Fame and he'll be remembered as nothing more than another Johnny Vander Meer, the only man to pitch two consecutive no-hitters but who finished with a sub-.500 lifetime record.

Ryan, despite his periods of invincibility, has a 113-113 lifetime mark although he has not had a losing season since joining California from the New York Mets. His blazing fastball has earned him nine American League strikeout records and three strikeout crowns.

Ryan lea ls the AL in strikeouts again this season with 216 but all the strikeouts in the world aren't worth anything if they are not accompanied by victories.

Fred Lynn deprived Ryan of the victory Thursday night with a two-out bloop single in the 10th inning to score Butch Hobson from third base. Hobson walked, moved to second on a sacrifice and took third on an infield out. It was the 10th time this season the Angels provided Ryan with one run or less in a game.

"If you miss (with a pitch) and make a mistake, it's different," said Ryan. "Then you should get beat. But I made the pitch I wanted—he (Lynn) just flared it down.

"My delivery hasn't gotten one bit better since the beginning of the season. I'm still looking for the consistency in my delivery. It comes and goes at times. Tonight my rhythm got better at the end of the game."

In other games, Cleveland defeated Texas 5-4, and Oakland beat Milwaukee 4-3.

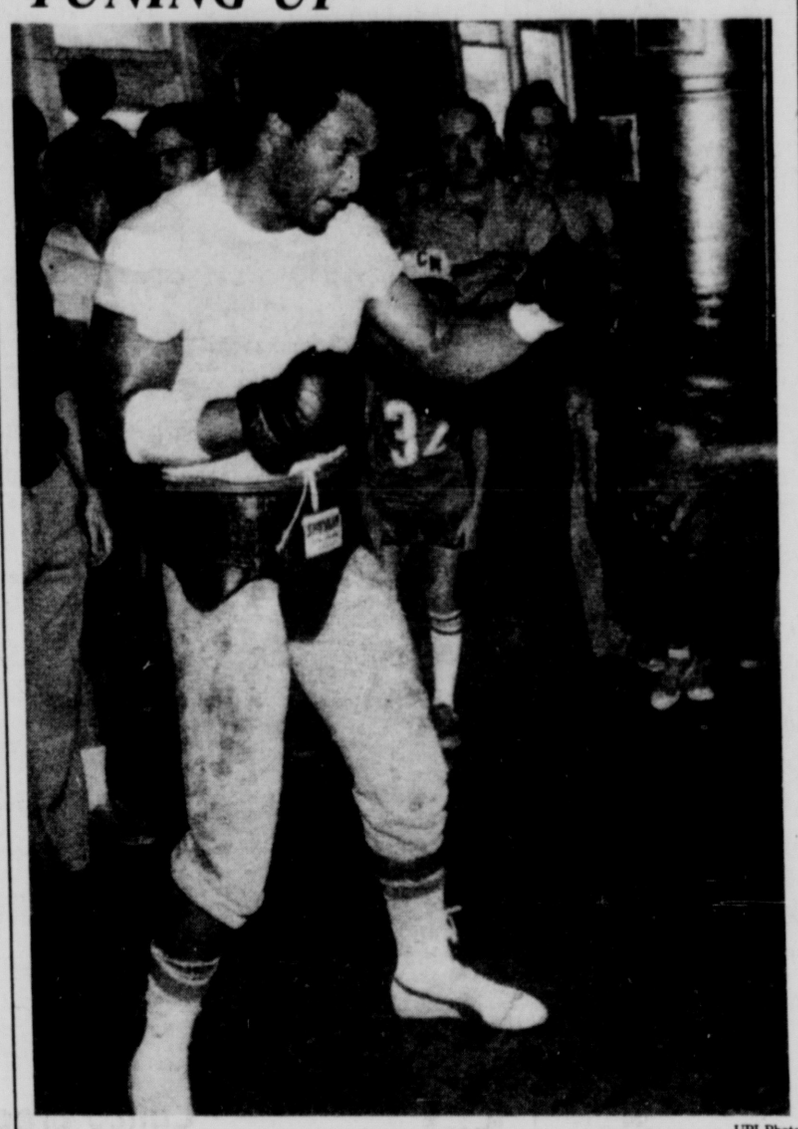

Indians 5, Rangers 4

Manager Frank Robinson slapped a pinch-hit single to score Larvell Blanks and cap a two-run ninth inning rally and lift Cleveland over Texas. The Rangers took a 4-3 lead in the sixth on a pair of unearned runs after .Boog Powell gave Cleveland a one-run lead in the third with a three-run homer.

A's 4, Brewers 3

Gene Tenace's eighth-inning single scored pinch-runner Larry Lintz from second to give Oakland its sixth straight victory. Sal Bando drew a two-out walk in the eighth off loser Bill Castro. Lintz was sent in to pinch run, stole second and scored on Tenace's single.

OK DH for Series

PHOENIX (UPI) — The designated hitter, one of the most hotly debated issues in baseball, will be permitted for the first time in this year's World Series.

American League owners won their battle for acceptance of the designated hitter —a 10th player batting for the pitcher— at baseball's annual summer meetings Thursday.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn cast the tie-breaking vote, adopting an AL proposal that the DH be used in alternating World Series, beginning this year. The National League, which had succeeded in banning the rule from the Series since the AL adopted it in 1973, remained staunch against any use of the designated hitter.

NL owners said the rule was against the best interests of baseball and would open the door for designated runners and other specialized players.

In announcing his decision, Kuhn said, "I should say, that as commissioner, I have stressed to both leagues that I think it most desirable to adopt a uniform approach to the regular season with this problem. I have named a committee of three members of each league to address themselves to the problem and the ways and means of reaching agreement."

Call Them the Toronto Blue Jays

TORONTO (UPI) — Major league baseball added another bird Thursday.

The Toronto expansion franchise in the American League announced it would be called the Blue Jays.

The name was selected by the board of directors from more than 30,000 entries submitted in a five-week-long name-the-team contest. The contest winner will be chosen from among the 154 contestants who suggested the Blue Jays.

The team which starts play next year will join the AL Baltimore Orioles and the NL St. Louis Cardinals as the third flying entry in the major leagues—not counting the Astros and the Angels.

NL owners were not openly critical of the commissioner's decision, although they reiterated their position against the designated hitter.

In other action, the owners agreed to pay any indemnification incurred by officers of baseball acting in good faith and the performance of their duties. Specifically, it applied to Kuhn and members of the executive council named defendants in a suit filed by Oakland A's owner Charles Finley after Kuhn nullified the sale of three Oakland players.

The owners also agreed to permit performance bonuses, previously prohibited, in specific cases. Hitters may receive bonuses for batting average, runs batted in, home runs, slugging percentage, stolen bases, runs scored, total bases and walks. Pitchers may receive bonuses for wins, earned run average, saves and winning percentage.

Kuhn said he had no comment on this week's proposal by a congressional committee to strip baseball of the antitrust exemption, granted under a 1921 U.S. Supreme Court ruling.

"I expect to testify again before the committee and I will have no comment until I see specific legislative proposals," he said. "I do not view the committee's actions as pressure to re-establish a franchise in Washington."

American League owners set Nov. 5 as the date of their expansion draft to man the Toronto and Seattle franchises which join the league in 1977. Each of the 12 existing teams will originally protect 15 players as of Oct. 25. A team may withdraw three more players from consideration after each of the first, second and third rounds and two more players after each subsequent round. Each expansion team will select 30 players, with each established team losing five.

Queens LL Advances

ROSENDALE — Queens Village of Bellrose, Queens, moved into the finals of the Eastern Regional Little League Junior Girls Softball Tournament here Thursday by eliminating the Pennsylvania champs with a 5-4 victory.

Bellrose, the New York State champion, will face the winner of the New England-Mid-Atlantic contest slated for today. The winner of the Regionals will represent the East in the Little League Softball World Series in Oregon later this month.

A three-run rally in the fifth inning, an outburst helped by only one basehit, overcame a 4-2 lead that Newberry of Williamsport had held since the third inning. Loser Katie Luke got herself in the jam by walking two of the three batters she passed in the game to start the inning.

Mary Patton clipped Luke for a single that loaded the bases. Errors by the Williamsport centerfielder and catcher allowed two runs to score as Bellrose pulled into a 4-4 tie, then Joanne Negron belted a scarifice fly to center to chase home Patton with the winning run.

Bellrose got the jump on Williamsport with two runs in the first inning. As in the fifth, the winners had only one hit, and that just loaded the bases. The runs scored on Williamsport errors.

Williamsport took its temporary lead with all of its runs coming in the third. Tina Martin belted a three-run triple to key the surge.

Mid-Atlantic winner Worcester-Wicomico, Md., plays Seymour, Conn., today for the right to meet Bellrose in the championship game Saturday at 1 p.m.

Frazier Hasn't Given Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite the fact that his clubs is 17 games out of first place, Joe Frazier still hasn't given up on the New York Mets' chances of finishing first in the National League East. The Mets still haven't given up on Frazier.

The Mets announced Thursday that they have given Frazier, a self-described "organization man," a one year extention on his present contract which was to expire at the end of this season.

"We're satisfied with him and he's satisfied with us," said Mets Chairman of the Board M. Donald Grant in a statement from Phoenix, where Grant is attending the annual major league summer meetings.

"I don't need a vote of confidence," Frazier said. "Our ballclub is doing good and we're still in the running for second place. Maybe first if we get a few breaks and Philadelphia should falter.

"All I asked for is a one-year contract. Maybe I don't want to manage more than one year. Maybe I do, maybe I don't. A one-year contract is the only way to do it. I'm an organization man. They asked me to manage and I did. I go along with their policies. That's the way we work."

The Mets are third in the National League East, 17 games behind Philadelphia. The Mets lost 3-0 Thursday to San Diego but remained only three games behind runnerup Pittsburgh.

New York has been troubled by injuries all season, the most serious of which was an injured thumb that has forced Dave Kingman, the major leagues' top home run hitter, to miss six weeks. In addition, the Mets have shown little punch at the plate, unable to capitalize on the excellent pitching turned in by their four starters—Tom Seaver, Jon Matlack, Jerry Koosman and Mickey Lolich.

"I feel that I have done a good job in the face of the circumstances, the injuries this team has suffered and the other problems," Frazier said.

The weak offense was in evidence again Thursday when the Padres' Rick Sawyer blanked them on eight hits.

Fred Kendall's two-run bases-loaded single highlighted a three-run second inning outburst and that was all San Diego needed to drop Seaver to 9-8. The three-time Cy Young Award winner has not won since July 8.

Willie Davis led off the second with a double and Mike Ivie and Dave Winfield added consecutive infield hits before Kendall's single. Sawyer aided his own cause with an RBI single, his fourth hit in seven at-bats.

Sawyer, purchased from the New York Yankees' Syracuse farm club in the International League July 30, improved his record to 3-0 and lowered his ERA to 0.82 as he registered his second shutout in 10 days.

★★★

In the World Champion Cincinnati Reds' clubhouse of wall-to-wall stars, outfielder George Foster is only beginning to be recognized.

Recognition has come slowly but by the end of the season it is quite possible the 27-year old Foster will be considered the National League's Most Valuable Player.

"My goal this season was to reach my full potential," says Foster. "I don't know what that really is. But the idea is to keep improving."

Foster is certainly achieving the second goal—if not the first —as he continues to be the Reds' most effective hitter.

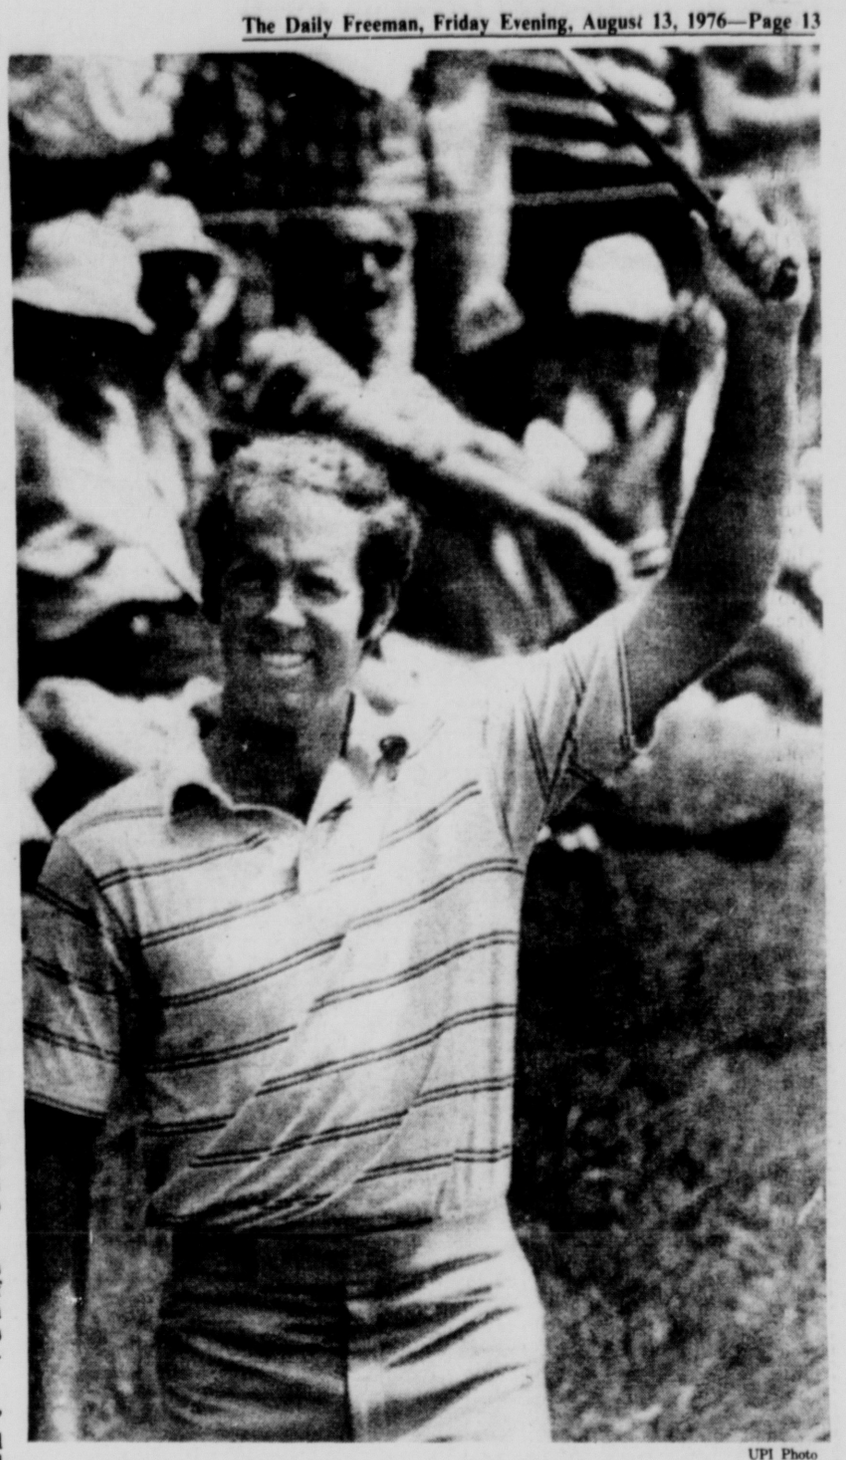

Foster drove in four runs with his 25th and 26th homers and became the first major leaguer to drive in 100 runs this season Thursday when the Reds won 8-3 over the Chicago Cubs. Foster earned his shot at a regular outfield position on May 3, 1975, when Pete Rose switched from the outfield to third base—undoubtedly the most important move made by Manager Sparky Anderson all last season—and went on to bat .300 with 23 homers and 78 RBI.

Foster tied the score at 3-3 with his first homer in the eighth inning and hit the three-run homer as the Reds clinched the game with four runs in the ninth. Joe Morgan and Johnny Bench also homered for the Reds, who have won 13 of their last 15 games.

Manny Sarmiento, who pitched one shutout inning, received credit for the victory while Bruce Sutter was the loser. Pete LaCock homered for the Cubs.

Atlanta defeated Philadelphia 4-3 in the only other scheduled National League game.

Willie Montanez' two-run homer climaxed a three-run third-inning outburst whch enabled Atlanta to beat Philadelphia. Frank LaCorte picked up his first major league victory after six losses while Jim Lonborg suffered his eighth setback compared to 12 wins.

Weiskopf Turned On By PGA Excitement

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — There are many run-of-the-mill golf tournaments, Tom Weiskopf feels, but few major championships.

"I play the game for trophies," he said. "The money at a golf tournament is always established beforehand, but there's only one champion.

"If you didn't have something like this, golf would be a boring sport. You have to have something to look forward to—a special reward. There's something more exciting to me about major tournaments."

Call it the Jack Nicklaus philosophy, if you will. But Nicklaus has been a bit more successful with it, winning 16 major championships. Weiskopf has only one, the 1973 British Open.

Now he's gunning for another, the 1976 PGA Championship, and his five-under-par opening round 65 Thursday left little doubt he's ready to put his temper tantrums and personal problems aside to concentrate on golf.

"I've had some problems this year I can't discuss. I haven't even discussed them with my closest friends," he said. "I have a happy family life, I'm not going in debt, and I'm not going before the Supreme Court or anything. I just haven't been able to handle things right.

"But I haven't won in 13 months (since last year's Canadian Open) and I want to win so badly."

The 33-year-old Weiskopf, despite the heat and humidity at Congressional Country Club, came within one shot of the course record, shooting 31 on the front nine and 34 on the back. Included was a spectacular eagle on the sixth hole, where he holed out with a six iron from about 170 yards down the fairway.

"It hit about eight feet short of the hole and rolled straight in. I knew it was going to be close—close being within 10 feet," he said.

Weiskopf also birdied three of the four par-three holes, but bogeyed the 554-yard 15th, which figured to be a birdie hole for him.

He said the heat and humidity didn't bother him.

"It can't get too hot for me," he said. "It's much better to play when you're hot and loose than when you're bundled up in two or three sweaters and the temperature is about 40."

The drying of the fairways after early week rain and the fact the greens still held well led to 11 sub-par rounds, more than expected over the 7,024-yard course.

Tom Watson, Lee Trevino and Don January topped a large group at even-par 70, while Arnold Palmer, defending champion Nicklaus, top tour money winner Ben Crenshaw and Gene Littler were among those at 71. Masters champion Ray Floyd had 72, but Al Geiberger, figured as a contender, shot a 78.

"The golf course was really different today than in the practice rounds," said Kite, who won at Philadelphia this year. "The ball was rolling a long way, and that helps a short hitter like me a little bit. It makes the holes more reachable for us."

McGee agreed, saying the course "was two clubs shorter today than Tuesday."

"They ought to rename this place the Nicklaus Country Club or Weiskopf Country Club, because it's made for the way they play—long and high shots," he cracked. "It's too bad Johnny Miller (who withdrew with a hand injury) isn't here. He'd be a real terror."

Kingston Legion Wins

ALBANY — The Kingston American Legion Post 150 baseball team, all nine of them, ended its 12-7 season Thursday with a 2-1 victory over the Columbia County All Stars for a third place finish in the Legion All Star Tournament in Bleecker Stadium.

Saugerties Legion continues its bid for the New York State championship Saturday at 2 p.m. when it meets Glens Falls, also at Blecker Stadium.

Dave Loeffler carried Kingston's makeshift lineup with a strong one-hitter, and he also stroked an RBI single that accounted for the margin of victory.

Kingston manager Ron Secreto had to go with what he had against the best of Columbia County's four posts. He had pitchers in the outfield, another at first base and a first baseman behind the plate. It all worked out fine.

Columbia, though, got the jump on the winners with their run in the top of the third. Tim Pilsten scored it after he had become the first Columbia baserunner of the game.

Loeffler lost Pilsten to balls after one man was out, but the next hitter, Paul Post, gave Kingston a chance to end the inning with a potential double play tap back to the box. Loeffler made the play and fired to Val Galm at second, but the throw got by Galm, and Pilsten raced home with the go-ahead run.

Kingston got the run back with interest in the bottom half of the frame. A leadoff single by Marco Tiano started things off, then Columbia obliged the locals with an infield error on Joe Augustine's grounder to put two men aboard.

Paul Runge slapped a grounder to short, but that too was booted to allowed Tiano to cross safely and tie the game. Loeffler then ripped a single off Jim Romancauk to drive in Augustine with the last run of the contest.

Loeffler finished up with nine strikeouts against three walks. Romancauk was almost as sharp with eight K's and three walks.

Kingston got its first hit off Romancauk in the second inning, but Loeffler kept his slate clean for five full frames. John Kraham broke up Loeffler's bid in the sixth with a Texas leaguer that bounced in front of centerfielder Rich Bell.

Kraham stole second and went to third on a poor throw, but he was cut down trying to steal the plate. The only other good chance Columbia had to score came in the fourth after Glen Shutts had advance to second on an error and a walk. Shutts tried to score on a fly to left, but a strong throw by John Acker trapped him in a rundown.

Roth Gains on PBA List

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Mark Roth, Staten Island, N.Y., and Larry Laub, San Francisco, each added to their totals in the official money standings of the Professional Bowlers Association last week.

Roth, second in the standings, finished 34th in the $60,000 Buffalo Open and the $430 he won upped his total for the year to $47,800, which still leaves him far behind leading Earl Anthony, Tacoma, Wash., who was idle last week. Anthony has earned $80,728.

Laub moved up to third place in the standings, ahead of Marshall Holman, Medford, Ore., with $900 in winnings at Buffalo. Laub has earned $40,890 while Holman has been paid $40,100.

The $60,000 New England Open was set to begin today at Lang's Bowlarama in Cranston, R.I. The winner will receive $6,000 following the finals Tuesday.

TRAPPED

Rain Gives Jimmy a Rest

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Heavy rains which flooded the Indianapolis Racquet Club courts Thursday night could benefit top-seeded men's singles player Jimmy Connors by giving him time to rest an ailing back.

Connors, Belleville, Ill., moved into today's third round of the $157,000 National Clay Courts Tennis Championships without having to make a decision whether to drop from doubles competition to concentrate on singles which has a $22,000 reward for the winner.

The rain halted play between Mexico's Raul Ramirez and Mark Edmondson of Australia with each man holding one set. Fourth-seeded Ramirez won the first, 6-2, but lost the second, 7-6. Washed out was the match between No. 5 Ed Dibbs of Miami and No. 10 Francois Jauffret of France.

All other seeded men advanced to the third round but second-seeded Guillermo Vilas already nailed down a semifinals perch.

Conners and Vilas breezed through their opponents in straight sets before a series of thunderstorms postponed most of the doubles play and the two singles matches.

In the only women's singles match, No. 8 Helga Masthoff of West Germany ousted Ilana Kloss of South Africa, 6-1, 6-2.

Connors disposed of former Big Ten champion Victor Amaya, Holland, Mich., 6-2, 7-5, while Vilas needed just 20 minutes to eliminate Dick Crealy of Australia, 6-1, 1-0.

Connors, the former Wimbledon champ, said his back was "feeling great compared to Wednesday night" when he was forced into a third set before Australian Colin Dibley retired with leg cramps.

Crealy also retired, complaining of sore feet. He lost seven straight games after holding service to open the first set.

Harold Solomon, Jaime Fillol, Brian Gottfried and Onny Parun also gained the third round.

Solomon, Silver Springs, Md., and seeded sixth, rallied from a 1-4 deficit in the third set to beat No. 12 Ray Moore of South Africa, 6-2, 1-6, 7-5; No. 7 Fillol, Chile, won four of the last five games from Henry Bunis, Cincinnati, for a 3-6, 6-2, 6-3 triumph; Gottfried, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., blasted NCAA champ Bill Scanlon of Dallas, 6-3, 6-2; and No. 9 Parun, New Zealand, battered Jario Velasco, Colombia, 7-6, 6-4.

West Advances in Billiards

CHICAGO (UPI) — Defending champion Dallas West, Rockford, Ill., rolled over Richard Riggie, Ellicott City, Md., 150-32 in 14 innings Thursday to stay undefeated in the $25,000 U.S. Open Pocket Billiard Championships.

Joe Balsis of Minersville, Pa., easily defeated Bob Vanover of Lewisville, Tex., 150-21 in 10 innings.

Then Danny DiLiberto, Hollywood, Fla., exploded for the tournament high run of 118 and trounced Paul Brienza of Morristown, N.J., 150-62 in six innings.

Sixteen-year-old national junior champion Mar Beilfuss of Grand Rapids, Mich., followed with a 150-75 win over Mark Sardelli, Roseville, Mich.

Still unbeaten in the double-elimination tourney were Tom Jennings, Edison, N.J.; S.E. Cloyd of London, Ky., and Wendell Weir, Chicago.

Jennings beat Ray Guilbeault 150-83 in 19 innings; Cloyd beat Jim Pomerleac, Augusta, Maine, 150-131 in 25 innings, and Weir won over John Ervolino, Las Vegas, 150-83 in 20 innings.

In the women's competition, Jean Balukas upped her consecutive victory string to 22 with a 75-20 route of Gerry Titcomb, Cincinnati, in 20 innings. Balukas last lost in 1971 — to Titcomb.

In other matches, Vickie Frechen, St. John's, Mich., outscored Sari Adams, Rochester, N.Y., 75-37 in 37 innings. Another Brooklyn player, Billie Billing, nipped Bonnie Gums, Chicago, 75-67 in 35 innings. Gloria Walker, Cheyney, Pa., overcame Beth Marietta, Tuscaloosa, Ala., 75-35 in 33 innings.

Two foreign players also stayed in the competition. Lou Condo, Adelaide, Australia, defeated Paul Cianflone, Morristown, N'J., 150-47 in 24 innings. Tetsuro Kakutoh, Tokyo, Japan, beat Tom Cyr, Orlando, Fla., 150-76 in 24 innings.

HV Tops Accord In Sr. Babe Ruth

KINGSTON—Hudson Valley Savings of the Senior Babe Ruth League ended its season on a winning note by slipping by Accord,6-5. Will Scott's three run homer in the third provided the victorious margin.

Hudson Valley, in its four games prior to the Accord win, had won one and lost three.

The victory was a 6-2 ride over Hanstein, Berardi and Lawles. Kevin McLane took the win allowing only four hits in his Senior Babe Ruth debut. Hanstein evened up the record though, by downing Hudson, 6-3 in a five-inning contest called on account of darkness.

Hudson Valley also went down to the Moose Club's five run seventh inning explosion to lose, 8-4, after having led most of the game. Hudson Valley's final loss was to Red Hook by a score of 11-4.

Garden Earnings Are Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Madison Square Garden Corp., owner of the New York Knicks basketball team and the Rangers hockey team, has reported earnings of 30 cents a share for the three months ending May 31, up from 24 cents a share a year earlier.

Net income for the quarter was $1.43 million on revenues of $45.75 million compared with $1.14 million on revenues of $43.04 million a year earlier, the company said Thursday.

For the fisc il year ended May 31, the company reported net income of $4.16 million, or 87 cents a share, against $3.6 million, or 75 cents a share. Revenues were $169.13 million compared with $158.54 million.

President Alan N. Cohen said the company had operating improvements in its racing, real estate and development activities. Madison Square Garden owns Roosevelt Raceway in New York City and Arlington Park and Washington Park race tracks in Chicago.

$550,000 Sale at Spa

SARATOGA SPRINGS (UPI) — A total of 64 yearlings, including two offspring of Triple Crown winner Secretariat, were purchased Thursday night for $3,816,000 at the second of three nights of the annual Fasig-Tipton yearling sales at Saratoga.

The average price for the night was $60,571. Seven yearlings went unsold.

A new record for a single sale at Saratoga was set when an offspring of Secretariat out of Show Stopper was purchased by James A. Scully of Lexington, Ky., for $550,000. Scully was acting as agent for an undisclosed principal. The roan colt was sold by Wild Oak Plantation, owned by Charles and Howard Gilman, of Yulee, Fla. Clay Camp was their agent.

The previous high price for a yearling at Saratoga was $350,000 for Tom Swift, a colt sold in 1974 to Sigmund Sommer.

Barry Will Return to Warriors

OAKLAND (UPI) — Golden State Warriors star Rick Barry will play at least one more season to see if he can lead the team back to the championship heights of 1974-75.

The 6-foot-7 forward said Thursday he had delayed plans for a full-time career in broadcasting to compete again because "the last two years have been fun. This is the first time I've been on a team that is consistently good. This is the way I've felt all along that basketball should be. I still enjoy playing. I don't enjoy losing."

But it was obvious that the thought of Phoenix' upset 94-86 win over Golden State in the seventh game of the NBA Western Division playoff finals still rankled him.

"We let ourselves down; we let our fans down; we let the whole country down," said Barry. "I've decided to come back and give it another try and see if this time we won't have a one-game letdown. We didn't play our best game and that left a sour taste in my mouth."

CBS is known to have made lucrative offers to Barry but the Warrior star said he didn't want "to play one side against the other."

Roger Suffers 10-Stitch Gash

Staubach vs. Longley, Round Two

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — The on-again, off-again quarterbacking feud between Roger Staubach and Clint Longley ended with just one punch.

As far as brawls go, Thursday's brief bout in the Dallas Cowboys' training room wasn't much. But it should leave lasting memories for all concerned.

For the record Longley won by a TKO, sending Staubach to the hospital with a 10-stitch gash above his eye. But the once heir apparent to the Cowboys' No. 1 quarterbacking job might be the loser in the end.

Longley stomped out of camp and the Cowboys immediately suspended the three-year veteran without pay. Today he is likely on the trading block.

"Longley has made his feelings clear about what he wants —that is to be traded," Coach Tom Landry said. "And if that is so, then I will try to accommodate him."

General Manager Tex Schramm agreed, saying the Cowboys "usually have taken into consideration the desires of a player who wanted to be traded."

It was the second fight in a week for the two quarterbacks. The two had engaged in a Monday scuffling match after having words during a passing drill. But according to Staubach, there was nothing to precipitate the Thursday fight.

"I didn't provoke him at all," Staubach said. "He came at me. He hit me with a gutless punch. He hit me just as I was putting on my shoulder pads and I fell and hit my head on the scales. The next thing I knew, my teammates were all around me keeping me from getting at him."

A Cowboy spokesman said there hadn't been any bad feeling between the two.

"There's been no feeling at all. Longley's side of the story is that Staubach is such a competitor that he won't allow anyone competing for his job to be a friend. Staubach's story is that Longley never wanted to be friendly," he said. "You get all kinds of stories. You can make of it what you want."

Longley refused to discuss Thursday's fight but said he could not play on the same team with Staubach.

"As far as I'm concerned, he's a player, not a coach. I don't want him evaluating my efforts for the team and I won't evaluate his," he said.

Staubach said he felt Longley had decided to leave the team and that he wanted to take "one last shot. He had no guts to fight me head on. He called Drew Pearson some names I would not repeat and I called him on it," Staubach said of the Monday fight. "And hitting me ith a gutless punch was his way of getting back."

Longley, who led the nation's small colleges in passing and total offense while at Abilene Christian, was drafted by Cincinnati in 1974 but was traded to the Cowboys.

While with the Cowboys, he quickly became a crowd favorite with comeback wins over Washington in 1974 and the New York Jets last year. He also earned the nickname "The Mad Bomber" for his love of the deep pass.

Greenwood Outswims Four Olympians

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Mark Greenwood claims he was thinking only of himself in the free-style race of the AAU National Outdoor Swimming championships instead of worrying about his more touted opposition—John Naber.

"I've had a problem concentrating before, so I just forgot about Naber and the rest of them," said Greenwood, of Fresno, Calif. "I worked on myself and it worked."

Greenwood outswam four Olympians Thursday night, including Naber, who won a host of Olympic medals, to win the 200-meter freestyle.

He said felt he "bombed out" at the Olympic trials and called Thursday night's victory a "redemption" he was pleased with.

Kim Peyton of Portland, Ore., won the 200-meter freestyle and Donnalee Wennerstrom of Northridge, Calif., won the 400-meter individual medley at J.B. Kelly Pool. Swimming in her last AAU nationals, Peyton won the 200-meter freestyle in 2:03.01.

"I haven't worked out extremely hard since Montreal," said the two-time U.S. Olympian, "so I have more speed now than endurance. I had to go out fast and try to hold on."

Peyton held on well to beat Brenda Borgh, of Newtown Square, Pa., and Wendy Boglioli of Ocean Township, N.J. in the finals. The girls were teammates on the American gold medal 400-meter freestyle relay squad at Montreal. Teammate Shirley Babashoff, was not entered.

Wennerstrom said she felt her winning time of 4.57.74 would have won this event even if Babashoff had competed.

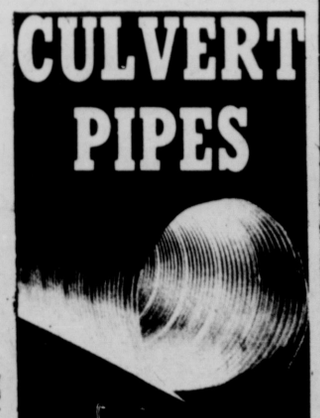

"It's hard to get psyched here compared to the pressurized atmosphere at Montreal," said the high school junior who was sixth in the same event at the Olympics. "So you expect the times to be slower. Still my time probably would have won."

Jesse Vasallo, who turned 15 last Monday, led from start to finish in the men's 400 individual medley to beat his teammate from Mission Viejo, Calif., Brian Goodell, who finished more than two seconds behind Vasallo's 4:28.34. He was runner-up Wednesday night to another teammate, Casey Converse.

Vasallo, who outswam his career record by seven seconds, moved to Miami from his native Puerto Rico where "we had to train in the ocean there because they kicked us out of the hotel pools."

Oakland Meets Jets Tonight

Raiders Happy to See Todd

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders will see a lot of rookie quarterback Richard Todd tonight when they face the New York Jets in a National Football League pre-season game and they couldn't be happier.

It's not that the Raiders exactly fear Joe Namath, the Jets' No. 1 quarterback, but they're mapping out Super Bowl plans even at this early stage of the season.

"We're glad we're going to be seeing a lot of Todd," said Al LoCasale, the Raiders' executive assistant. "We open up against Pittsburgh and Todd is a lot like the Steelers' Terry Bradshaw. He has the same real running ability that Bradshaw has, not just quarterback running ability. You have to work at maintaining a disciplined rush against him."

Todd, a 6-foot-2, 210-pounder, is a rarity among quarterbacks in that he's an avid weightlifter. He also has drawn quite a few stares at the Jets' training camp because he wears large runner's shoulder pads as opposed to the scaled-down version most quarterbacks use and looks like a lineman taking snaps from center.

A small crowd of only about 15,000 is expected at Yankee Stadium as the Jets play their second game in three nights. Hurricane Belle forced postponement of Monday night's game against the New York Giants to Wednesday and Jets regulars went all the way in a last-minute 16-14 loss to the Giants.

Jets Coach Lou Holtz, whose club has lost its first two games, said Namath will start but that Todd, the No. 1 draft choice from Alabama, would probably play 90 per cent of the game. New York lists over 20 players as injured and what will face the unbeaten Raiders, who have beaten Dallas and St. Louis in pre-season, basically will be a team of rookies and reserves.

"I'm looking forward to getting in some time," said Todd, who did not play against the Giants. "I think I've really improved since my first game against St. Louis two weeks ago. I had only been in camp a short while and I really didn't know what I was doing. Now I'm beginning to pick up things that I was missing before. I watched Joe work the Giants and I could see how his game plan was developing. I learned a lot just watching him but I'm anxious to get into action."

Riggins Debuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Running back John Riggins, an expensive free agent aquisition, makes his debut in a Washigton Redskins uniform Saturday against the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

Riggins, signed to an estimated $1.5 million five-year contract after playing out his option with the New York Jets, sat on the sidelines with a minor leg injury during the first two Redskins pre-season games. But the former Kansas star, who rushed for 1,005 yards last season, is now set to go and is expected to start with Mike Thomas, National Conference Rookie of the Year in 1975.

Thomas and Riggins are set for a heavy day of action, with Coach George Allen short on backs and, as always, eager to make an impression in a nationally televised game, even before the regualar season begins.

Calvin Hill, the former Dallas star who also came to the Redskins as a high priced free agent, will not play because of a pulled hamstring and Moses Denson also is doubtful. In addition, Larry Brown, trying to come back after knee surgery, is reluctant to swing into heavy combat too soon.

The hometown crowd also will see another new face in cornerback Joe Lavender, teaming up for the first time with veteran Pat Fischer, just recovered from a sprained knee.

Flood's Toll Grows

LOVELAND, Colo. (UPI) — The death toll in the Aug. 1 Big Thompson Canyon flood now stands at 98 — and police are certain more bodies will be found.

The organized search for the dead from the flood is over, but debris removal crews located three more bodies Thursday.

Sheriff's investigator Steve Linton said the Red Cross still lists more than 200 persons as missing and that an eventual total death count of 150 "would be realistic."

"We've stopped the organized search for bodies because we think we have found all of them that are on the surface," a spokesman for the Larimer County sheriff's office said.

"But we expect more and more bodies to be turned up as the job of removing debris continues."

Linton said 65 bodies had been identified as of Thursday night. The latest to be identified was that of Greg Harmon, 18, Keokuk, Iowa.

"The bodies found were starting to decompose, but so far we're having pretty good luck in identification using dental records," Linton said. "We're trying to obtain as many dental charts and fingerprints on missing persons as soon as we can."

Five victims were found Wednesday, among them Jamie Mares, who would have celebrated his 9th birthday Aug. 1, the day the flood roared down the 35-mile-long canyon from Estes Park to Loveland.

The bodies of the boy's father and sister were found last week. His mother and a 6-year-old brother are missing.

Gov. Richard Lamm asked President Ford to declare portions of El Paso, Pueblo and Weld counties federal disaster areas because of damage from the storm, which caused the flood.

Larimer County, where the Big Thompson Canyon is located, was declared a disaster area last week.

Sniper's Motives Withheld

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — In a guarded hospital room, a teenager told police his motives for opening fire from the top of Kansas' tallest building on a busy downtown street. A third victim of the sniping attack died in the same hospital Thursday while police talked with the suspect.

Michael Soles, 19, of Sand Springs, Okla., was arraigned on three charges of murder. Police said Soles, who was in fair condition with shotgun pellet wounds, gave them a motive for the shootings, but that it would not be revealed until his case goes to trial.

The suspect's father, James Soles, said his son had moved to Wichita recently to look for work as a welder and may have been dejected by not finding a job.

Judge Owen Ballinger of Common Pleas Court, holding court in the hospital room, also arraigned Soles, described by relatives as religious, quiet and nonviolent, on charges of commission of murder during a felony, aggravated assault, aggravated burglary and aggravated assault against a law enforcement officer.

Bail was set at $1 million, the highest ever in Kansas. A hearing was set for next Wednesday in Ballinger's court.

The third victim was Mark Falen, 23, of Wichita. He was shot in the neck during Wednesday's sniping attack from a balcony on the 26th floor of the Holiday Inn.

Two other men died and seven were wounded by the sniper firing into the busy street.

Joseph Goulart, 56, a freelance news photographer, who had heard the report of a sniper on his police band radio, arriveu at the scene and was hit in the chest by a bullet that smashed through the windshield of his car. Elmer W. Hensley, 57, a glass company employe working near the hotel, died of a wound in the back.

Police said the sniper carried two rifles and a lunch pail onto a hotel balcony and started his deadly spray of bullets. Police fired from an adjoining balcony, ending the assault with a shotgun blast. Soles was wounded in the arms and leg.

Convicted Cadets Total at 74

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — The number of U.S. Military Academy cadets convicted of cheating on a spring examination has risen to 74, although none have yet been expelled by Army Secretary Martin Hoffman.

While those already convicted waited to see if West Point's traditional honor system would be changed, Army officer boards Thursday sustained cheating allegations against two cadets and acquitted two others.

The two acquittals brought to 34 the number cleared after special hearings. So far, 199 cadets have been implicated in the scandal involving a junior class electrical engineering assignment last spring.

Although the hearings began in June, Hoffmann has not ordered expulsions for any of the cadets found guilty. He is the only one with the power to do so.

Traditionally, expulsion has been the only penalty possible for violations of the honor code, although the academy superintendent has discretionary power not to forward an expulsion recommendation to the secretary.

The current scandal has prompted sharp criticism of the lack of lesser penalties, however.

On Wednesday, 173 congressmen wrote Hoffmann to request that he not expel the convicted cadets and that the present honor system be ended because it is too harsh.

A majority of West Point cadets voted last year to establish lesser penalties, but the vote fell short of the twothirds margin the Cadet Honor Committee said should be obtained for the change.

Many officials and cadets, including Col. Hal Rhyne, deputy superintendent for honor affairs, now feel that changes are likely this fall.

Cadets have gone to federal courts in New York, New Jersey and Rhode Island in hopes of blocking the system, although none has yet been successful.

Michael Rose, an Air Force Academy graduate and a nationally recognized expert on honor codes, has been retained as an attorney by several cadets implicated in the scandal.

Cadets have also been lobbying in Washington for federal action on the code and the system.

Tornadoes Twist Through Florida

By UPI

Madonna Brown looked outside from the candle-lit recreation room of her trailer home.

"I looked outside and said 'My God, I think we're having a tornado,'" she said.

Three twisters swirled over the heavily populated trailer park area near Largo on Florida's Gulf Coast Thursday. When they left, at least one person had been killed and at least 13 injured.

Police said the twisters cut through a half-mile-long, quarter-mile-wide area of Pinellas County on a peninsula jutting into the Gulf, west of Tampa.

Authorities early today were searching the rubble of more than 100 destroyed or damaged trailers for more dead or injured.

"It looked like paper flying through the air, like millions of birds." Mrs. Brown said. "By that time our trailer had been hit. I told my husband, 'My gosh, get down on the floor, get down, get down, stay down.'"

Her husband suffered minor injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sulentic said one of the twisters came from the northeast and the second, the one that caused the most damage, came directly out of the east.

"We saw all the debris — we though it was seagulls at first," Mrs. Sulentic said.

Fire Department Capt. Dan Horn said he and his crew were on the scene within minutes of the first tornado and saw two other twisters tear through the area of the Westgate Mobile Home Park. About 75 mobile homes were reported damaged in Westgate and another 35 were hit in nearby Lee's Travel Park.

An elderly woman was the only reported fatality.

Power was cut off to about 20,000 persons as a result of the storm, and minor outages were reported in adjacent communities.

The storm capped a day of showers across the nation, although early morning windstorms gusting over parts of the Midwest subsided.

A violent windstorm swept through the Michigan Upper Peninsula and the northern part of the lower peninsula early Thursday, uprooting trees and doing some property damage.

Another storm hit the central Illinois community of Cuba, downing trees and power lines.

Parts of Iowa got up to three inches of rain, but the heaviest fall was in the southern part of the state and missed northwest Iowa, where farmers needed the rainfall most for parched crops.

Drought in major corn producing regions sliced 266 million bushels off the governmnent's estimate of the 1976 corn crop.

Physical Fitness

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The physical fitness of America's boys and girls got mixed reviews from University of Michigan researchers who tested some 7,800, ages 10 to 17.

The chinning, sit up, shuttle run, long jump and such tests showed: Physical fitness hasn't declined over the past decade, but it hasn't improved much either. The only gains were "relatively minor" ones made by girls in endurance tests.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

TEASED: (Q.) The reason I am writing is that I am in love with a really cute boy named Bob who lives down the street. I am sure that he likes me, but he ignores me. I think the reason is that his older sister and my older sister tease us about each other.

I can't stand it anymore. How can I get them to stop? — Enough in Texas.

(A.) Your sisters can't watch you and Bob every minute. Next time you get an opportunity to talk to him alone, discuss the teasing, and start working out a set of signals with him.

You can have a signal for "Just listen to those silly girls yak," and a signal for "Here they go again." You can have a special signal for "Take to the lifeboat — -the storm's rising."

Before you know it, you and Bob will have so many secret signals and so much fun using them that your sisters' teasing will be welcome. When they see it is backfiring on them, they will back off.

Don't drop your signal system, though. Use it for other messages between you. A private language system brings people closer together.

TWO GIRLS: (Q.) Suzanne likes me very much, but I don't like her. The girl I like is Sandra. Suzanne won't leave ne alone. This is making Sandra dislike me.

I am getting confused, and now Sandra's going with another boy who doesn't like her as much as I do. I want to know if you can help me get Suzanne off my back and get Sandra and me back together. — Cornered in Connecticut.

(A.) The best way to get an unwanted girl off your back is to tell her kindly but positively that you don't care for her. Do this to Suzanne. Then tell Sandra that you like her, not Suzanne, and want her to be your girl friend.

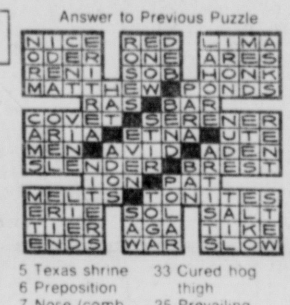

If Sandra says no, you will know that she likes the other boy more than she likes you. In that case, you can start afresh looking for a new girl.

(Write Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received, Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, AUGUST 14

Your birthday today: Encourages a simpler pattern of daily living, with your old habits more easily phased out. Material prosperity remains at about the level of the recent past unless you do something extra to change it in one way or another. Relationships deepen swiftly and can almost be taken for granted. Today's natives have a long tradition for being able to keep audiences spellbound, as comics, orators, writers and, occasionally, heads of state.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Your speed is a lick and a promise for routines and vigorous effort for solitary hobby or assembly work. Let youngsters set their own pace and activity.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): An episode in your past turns up again. You gain insight into reasons for things as they now are. Social invitations are important.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Today's stories build so smoothly, it's hard to see where reality fades and fantasy takes over. Take this chance to care for your health.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Let people go unquestioned now. Stick it out where you are, look over your budget and put in some time on a pet hobby.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You have a chance to learn by leisurely observation as well as by listening to topics discussed by experts. Prospects for your enterprises brighten.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Priority goes to those activities you have had to suspend lately. Accumulated correspondence and budgets require your attention. Spend tonight socializing.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Cooperation comes easy as long as you remember there's no special need for haste. Get in touch with people who can be of help.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Spend your leisure time outdoors. It is important to get busy and review your situation. Sketch out possibilities for future work.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): On this relatively quiet day, don't stir up people or take advantage of them. You can plan a more effective campaign if you think it over first.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You now have a go at solving a problem. You understand the process well enough to show someone else how to get the job done.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Use intuition, but find out the facts. Home and local community concerns run together. Participate fully.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Everybody has something else in mind, some place to go or some other thing to do. Tend to your errands, and you have almost everything going for you.

Opening lead — 8 ♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

"What terrible luck," groaned South. "East had to hold the king of hearts and ace of spades and be smart enough to lead back a diamond at trick two."

"I don't know," said North. "That eight of hearts lead marked East with the king. There was no good reason for you to finesse. Furthermore, if you had just asked yourself how you could be sure of nine tricks you would have risen with the ace of hearts and gone about the business of setting up spades before anyone could attack you in diamonds."

North was right. South could rise with the ace of hearts and be sure of four spades and four clubs, but he didn't bother to think.

He played dummy's queen of hearts at trick one. East took his king and shifted to a diamond. South's queen lost to West's king and West returned the eight spot to South's jack.

Later on, when East got in with the ace of spades he led his last diamond and West got two more diamond tricks.

Elizabeth, wife of Royal Governor William Franklin, of New Jersey, appealed to her father-in-law, Benjamin to "relieve our troubles and have William released." The Governor was voted "an enemy to the liberties of the country" by the N. J. Provincial Congress and was arrested and imprisoned seven weeks previously. The elder Franklin had refused to discuss his Tory son's fate, and there was no record of any reply to Elizabeth's plea, The World Almanac reports.

Handful of Tal Zaatar Defenders Vow Fight to the Last Man

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A handful of Palestinian gunmen fought hand-to-hand battles today in a desperate attempt to hold on to a small corner of a refugee camp already overrun by tank-backed Christian forces.

More than 19 hours after right-wing Christian forces stormed into the long-besieged Tal Zaatar camp and announced its fall, Moslem leftists claimed the battle was continuing.

"Our heroic fighters in Tal Zaatar will never surrender and will fight until the last man," the statement broadcast over the leftist-held Beirut radio said.

The statement said Christian forces, who had kept the camp in southeast Beirut under siege for eight weeks, launched massive assaults and artillery barrages throughout the night against the few remaining holdouts fighting in a line of shell-battered buildings in the enclave's northeast corner.

It also reported hand-to-hand combat in and around the 74-acre camp during the night.

The capture marked the end of the longest and fiercest battle of Lebanon's 17-month-old civil war and eliminated the last leftist stronghold in eastern Beirut.

The Christians predicted the few remaining defenders would soon be overpowered.

"There are no more than 50 of them," said a Christian commander. "They're low on ammunition and have no water. Unless they surrender, we either bomb them out or thirst them out."

Hassan Sabry El-Kholy, the Arab League envoy who has tried for weeks to produce a lasting truce, said "no more than 100" fighters were holed up in the corner of the camp, making a last stand.

The Christian forces took about 6,000 prisoners, mainly civilians, when they overran the camp.

All but 100, whom Christians said were Palestinian fighters, were packed into open trucks and driven to Moslem-held west Beirut, where they were released.

Kholy said the flight from the camp was "disorganized and bloody" and more than 100 persons were killed in crossfire.

A Palestine Liberation Organization spokesman charged Syria with complicity in the fall of the camp.

"The Syrians condoned it, they helped plan it, they made it possible by keeping the bulk of our forces diverted and unable to come to the camp's aid," he said. "May they burn in hell for this.

"Tal Zaatar was the largest refugee camp in Beirut. You can't push 20,000 people around like ants and expect to get away with it. The Christians owe us blood," he said.

Refugees from Tal Zaatar, many sobbing, others stonyfaced, began streaming across the green-line frontier between east and west Beirut Thursday morning.

When dusk fell, they were still coming, frightened bunches of men, women and children, carrying crying babies and hastily bundled belongings.

Many claimed there had been massacres and atrocities at the hands of the Christian forces.

One woman refugee said the prisoners were separated into two groups — women, children and elderly men in one and younger men of fighting age in another. The latter group was shot to death, she said.

But her account differed from that of another refugee who said the men were marched away.

Bayou Explosion Kills 12 Workers

CHALMETTE, La. (UPI) — An explosion ripped through a 20-story oil refinery tower Thursday night, and men working inside were trapped by a flash fire and a deadly barrage of falling debris.

Twelve persons were killed and seven others injured, five of them critically, in the blast at the Tenneco Oil Refinery alongside the Mississippi River.

"It will be a couple of days until they pull out all the parts of the bodies," said Ralph Carrera, a St. Bernard Sheriff's deputy, who was called to the scene.

"It was like hell in there. It was hot. The sides of the tower were charred and a lot of the guys were cut in half by the falling metal."

The only outside signs of the explosion were a muffled thud and a puff of smoke from the 207-foot tower five miles downriver from New Orleans.

Hours later the dead were lowered on a wooden platform rigged to a pulley outside the triple-towered silo. A blue 50-gallon oil drum served as a counterweight.

"We've never had anything like this since I came here in 1959," said a plant supervisor. "Every now and then a contractor will hit a live wire and electrocute someone, but we've never had anything of this magnitude."

The explosion and fire were confined to the silver-painted silo, less than 100 yards from the Mississippi River. Flashing lights from emergency vehicles were the only signs of trouble minutes after the deadly blast.

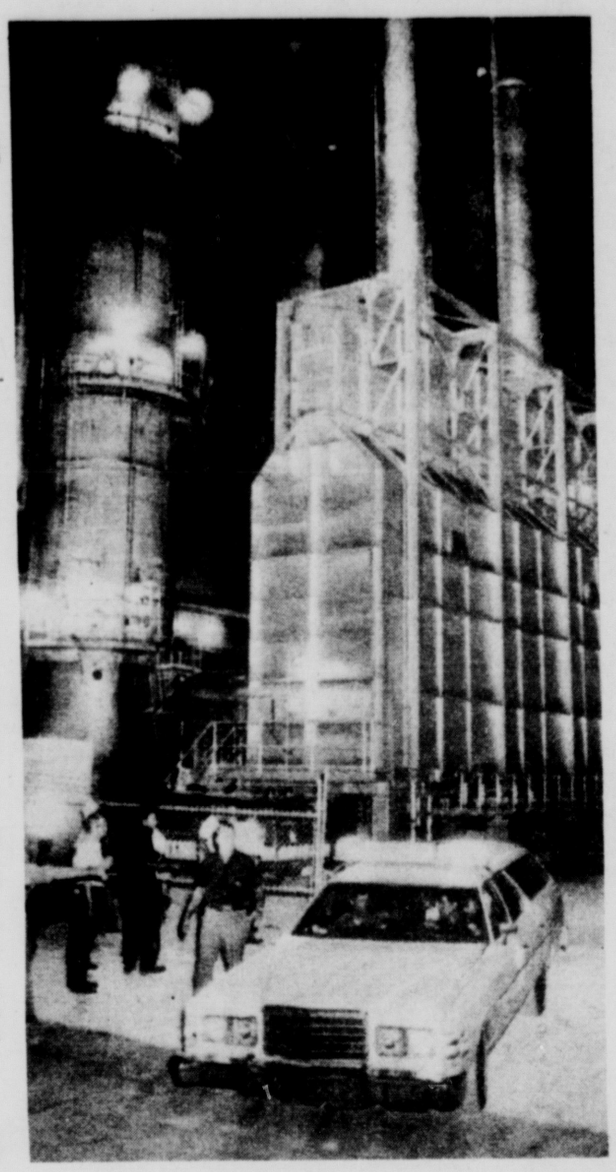

"I was down the road and I didn't hear anything, but it's sure a mess inside," said Carrera.

Rescue workers used light bulbs lowered on black electrical cords to illuminate the silo.

One workman reporting for the overnight shift said he was surprised by the blast.

"Somebody must have messed up in there. They've been working in there for a week and a half and there hasn't been any trouble," he said.

The plant, illuminated Thursday night by thousands of tiny light bulbs and a full moon, is located one mile off the nearest major highway. Deputies blocked access routes and prevented all but coroner's wagons and plant workers from entering.

Rumsfeld Under Knife

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld undergoes surgery today for tests on a small but possibly cancerous lump from his thyroid gland.

Doctors at Bethesda Naval Hospital planned to perform a biopsy, or tissue examination, on Rumsfeld's thyroid gland before removing the nodule. The biopsy will determine whether the lump might be malignant.

The 44-year-old Rumsfeld, who has been mentioned as a possible running mate or President Ford if he is nominated, entered the hospital Thursday. An annual physical examination last week led to discovery of the growth on the thyroid gland, located on either side of the windpipe in his neck.

The survival rate for thyroid cancer is extremely high, according to a spokesman for the National Cancer Institute. If localized, the spokesman said, males having such cancer have a 99 per cent chance of surviving, compared with only 8 per cent for lung cancer.

Rumsfeld heretofore has enjoyed excellent health. Before entering politics, he was captain of Princeton's wrestling team and 150-pound football squad. He was an All-Navy wrestling champion during his three years as a pilot in the service.

He has moved rapidly on the Washington scene. He served three terms in Congress, then headed the Office of Economic Opportunity and was a counselor to President Richard Nixon.

After serving as chairman of the Cost of Living Council and ambassador to NATO in Brussels, he was named Ford's chief of staff. He moved from the White House to the Pentagon last winter to succeed Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, whom Ford fired.

Rumsfeld is among more than a dozen persons asked by Ford for personal and financial information for use in his selection of a vice presidential running mate.

Two GOP Hopefuls Still on the Hunt

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Satisfied that the final platform will be acceptable to either candidate, supporters of President Ford and Ronald Reagan turned elsewhere today for the handful of delegates each needs to clinch the Republican presidential nomination.

Three days before the GOP National Convention opens in the new, gleaming white Kemper Arena hard by the stockyards of old Kansas City, the outcome of balloting for the candidate to oppose Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter in the fall campaign still was uncertain.

Political strategists for both Ford and Reagan were claiming a first-ballot victory was in sight. But the latest UPI tabulation showed both candidates still short of the 1,130 delegates needed — Ford with 1,122 votes and Reagan 1,035, with 102 uncommitted.

Convention platform writers were under pressure to finish work today on a document of campaign promises for the GOP nominee, whoever he is. And hardline conservatives had succeeded in getting some of their pet issues — such as an amendment to ban abortions, an end to federal aid for education, and a restoration of prayer in public schools — into the platform.

The conservatives threaten possible floor fights next week for stronger platform language on such issues as detente, the Panama Canal and a balanced federal budget.

Althoug l a Ford spokesman conceded there might be "genuine controversy" over the foreign policy plank, both sides believe either candidate could support tentative outlines of the platform that finally will be endorsed by the convention Tuesday night.

Thus, the heightening battle for delegate votes turned elsewhere, notably in places where Reagan allies hoped to exert psychological pressures on potentially vulnerable delegates and tilt the narrow balance of voting strength in Reagan's favor.

For his part, Ford's strategists were waging their own brand of psychological warfare, exuding confidence they already had the convention locked up and insisting they were successfully thwarting the Reagan challenges.

The White House claimed — and Reagan campaign manager John Sears denied — that Ford had won majority support in the crucial, 30-vote Mississippi delegation, the largest single bloc of uncommitted votes at the convention.

There were strong indications that Reagan has lost strength among the Mississippians since he chose Sen. Richard Schweiker, the liberal Pennsylvanian, as his prospective running mate. But it is not known whether Ford has the needed majority for abandoning the unit rule now binding the delegates to vote as a bloc.

The White House said it had detected no loss of Ford delegate strength because of Sen. James Buckley's announcement he would allow his name to be placed in nomination — if that would produce a first-ballot deadlock and thus free delegates of legal commitments to vote a certain way.

"We don't see any Ford delegates switching over," Ron Nessen, Ford's press secretary, said. "If Buckley is nominated, he would draw away from Reagan."

Swine Coverage Signed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford signed the federal swine flu insurance bill Thursday and ordered vaccinations to start as soon as possible.

The new law, by resolving the insurance problem that jeopardized the nationwide inoculation program, cleared the way for it to start in September.

It makes the federal government liable for medical lawsuits arising from the program and allows it, in turn, to recover costs by suing manufacturers, doctors, nurses or hospitals. Private insurance companies declined to insure the program directly for fear of a spate of nuisance suits.

"Scientific and medical evidence continues to support the need for a national influenza immunization program," Ford said.

"I am gratified that the Congress has responded to this potential public health emergency by providing, as I requested, the assurances necessary to make possible the protection of all Americans against this threat."

Palisades Appointees

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey made a new appointment to the Palisades Interstate Park Commission and reappointed a current member, his office said today.

Mamie Phipps Clark of Hastings-on-Hudson, a psychologist who is executive director of the Northside Center for Child Development and wife of state Board of Regents member Kenneth Clark, was appointed to a term ending Feb. 12, 1980.

George W. Perkins, owner and manager of Walbridge Farm in Dutchess County, was reappointed to a term ending Feb. 12, 1981.

Both positions are unsalaried and subject to Senate confirmation after the legislature returns in January.
